FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Logos Bible Software to Give $2,000 Scholarship to Baylor University's School of Engineering and Computer Science

Waco, TX—April 13, 2011—Baylor University announced today the Logos Bible Software $2,000 scholarship to be given to a student from the School of Engineering and Computer Science.

The scholarship, awarded by Baylor computer science faculty for the 2011–2012 school year, comes on the heels of U.S. News & World Report's ranking the engineering and computer science program 11th in the nation in 2010.

"We are impressed with Baylor's computer science program and are excited to be supporting it with this scholarship," said Bob Pritchett, CEO of Logos Bible Software. "We have already hired a Baylor student and look forward to working with more of Baylor's talented students."

The scholarship is part of a larger effort by Logos to recruit the best software developers available. Their development team continues to give people the best Bible study experience available with its latest product, Logos Bible Software 4.

"I am very excited about the partnership that Logos Bible Software has created with Baylor's Computer Science Department through employment for our students and scholarships," said Dr. Don Gaitros, Chairman of the School of Engineering and Computer Science at Baylor. "The scholarships will indeed help some worthy students in achieving their college degree. We are very grateful to Logos Bible Software."
