Master of Public Health
Environmental Health Science

- Do you want to make a difference locally, nationally and globally?
- Do you want to address environmental impacts on human health?
- Do you want to complete studies in a high-demand profession?

If yes, the MPH in Environmental Health Science is for you!

About
Environmental health deals with human health effects of exposure to chemical, physical, and biological agents in the community, workplace, and/or home. Environmental health professionals work in government, the private sector, non-profits and the military.

Careers options
- Environmental health specialist
- Toxicology
- Food safety specialist
- Global health
- Vector control specialist
- Biomedical research
- Occupational health and safety
- Industrial hygienist
- Medicine

Common job functions
- Disease outbreaks
- Disaster preparedness and response
- Water, sanitation and hygiene
- Food protection
- Vector control
- Air quality protection
- Safe and healthy housing
- Occupational health
- Healthy community design

For more information about environmental health visit: www.cdc.gov/nceh