Jay Enderkrecht
Mr. cups

Veterans Day recognizes people who have served for our country and made it what it is today.

Paula Haynes
Baylor Student

I think of people I worked with at the Myers Center [part of Missouri Waclo] that are serving today. It is a day for them to be remembered.

Thank you, Veterans

Father gifts ancient biblical texts

By Jon Mannnstrum

Baylor President Dr. Ken Starr was presented Tuesday with two copies of a work considered as the world’s oldest manuscript of the Bible. The two facsimiles are of the Codex Sinaiticus, which is written in Greek and includes the oldest complete copy of the New Testament.

One facsimile will be given to George Wiesloch, German ambassador to the U.S., and the other will be given to the German embassy. Father Justin of the St. Catherine monastery at Mount Sinai in Egypt gifted the facsimiles to Baylor.

It is “the only American who has ever been accepted into the monastic community at St. Catherine’s, which is the oldest working Christian monastery in existence.”

St. Justin describes the Codex Sinaiticus as the most authoritative text for a number of the books of the Old Testament.

The two copies are of the Codex Sinaiticus, which is written in Greek and includes the oldest complete copy of the New Testament.

One facsimile will be given to George Wiesloch, German ambassador to the U.S., and the other will be given to the German embassy. Father Justin of the St. Catherine monastery at Mount Sinai in Egypt gifted the facsimiles to Baylor.

Baylor President Dr. Ken Starr was presented Tuesday with two copies of a work considered as the world’s oldest manuscript of the Bible. The two facsimiles are of the Codex Sinaiticus, which is written in Greek and includes the oldest complete copy of the New Testament.

By Jon Mannnstrum

Baylor President Dr. Ken Starr was presented Tuesday with two copies of a work considered as the world’s oldest manuscript of the Bible. The two facsimiles are of the Codex Sinaiticus, which is written in Greek and includes the oldest complete copy of the New Testament.

One facsimile will be given to George Wiesloch, German ambassador to the U.S., and the other will be given to the German embassy. Father Justin of the St. Catherine monastery at Mount Sinai in Egypt gifted the facsimiles to Baylor.

It is “the only American who has ever been accepted into the monastic community at St. Catherine’s, which is the oldest working Christian monastery in existence.”

St. Justin describes the Codex Sinaiticus as the most authoritative text for a number of the books of the Old Testament.

The two copies are of the Codex Sinaiticus, which is written in Greek and includes the oldest complete copy of the New Testament.
Celebrities pose real crush threat

Now that we’re older, more mature, and have experienced life in a more meaningful way, we can realize that as college students, we are members of a university society and would like to offer our two cents. After seeing the show “Supernatural,” we have marked our calendars for the next one, and for some of the main characters, Dean Winchesters, and Sam Winchesters, we have started looking for our own hunting extremes, staying awake until the early morning hours and dealing with a dog-wagon full of rock salt. This crush translated into their colleges, the actor behind the character — Jensen Ackles.

Dear Jensen, I say, at least twice a week, you are my daily dose of entertainment, my escape from the daily stresses of life. I look forward to your arrival and your acting. You are my true love of this world. I know that I am not alone in this. There are many girls like me who look forward to your arrival. You are the world to me. I can see myself in you, and you are my inspiration. I want to be just like you. I will be you in the future. I love you, and I love you for who you are. I will always love you.

Jensen Ackles

February 2013

Baylor offers change to transform concerns into change

In a time of rising education costs and intellectual discourses shaping the future, Baylor finds a plan to deal with that sunny mayonnaise.

By 2012, President Ken Starr says, the university will have one that addresses questions of integrating academic excellence and Christian commitment within a continuing “community of caring” by continuing in strategic planning process. How much of this strategic planning is decided by faculty, students, alumni and friends of Baylor depends on how much, he says, how input, input Baylor receives from these parties. It is no secret that Baylor students feel plenty of reason to complain about on-campus accommodations. Students also complain to their buddies and parents about high tuition costs, a lack of parking on campus, a lack of study spaces and a lack of seminary spaces housing the dorms. But now students have an opportunity to voice their opinions not just to their friends, but to those on Facebook and not just to faculty. Students can take their concerns and complaints to the next level — those at the top of the university chain.

It is the Baylor community’s responsibility to take concerns to the university, and Baylor is providing it with a tool that offers opportunity to do so.

Next month starts the community input phase in which organizations and groups will discuss how Baylor can tackle these issues. As November is designated for community reflection, between studying and extracurricular activities, members of the Baylor family will follow Starr’s recommendation and reflect on several documents available on the strategic planning website (www.baylor.edu/academics/)

One such document, “Transforming the Future,” written by Dr. Elaine Davis, executive vice president for academic affairs, brings together real questions regarding the areas of education, Christian commitment and community. These questions are not of the blink, pop-quiz variety. Some examples include:

What types of social, spiritual and physical programs should complement our academic efforts?

How do we extend our influence globally through our undergraduate programs?

What means do we claim it is a Christian university in the Baptist tradition?

More broadly, how are faith and learning to be related?

To add the basic logistics of maintaining college, she asks:

What practices needs to change to manage the rising costs of higher education without sacrificing our fundamental core values?

In regard to building community through extracurricular, sports, etc., she asks:

How should such programs be developed and the areas in which we should invest?

These are just a few questions on which Davis invites Baylor to ponder. To turn Baylor’s plan into reality, to offer its students much more participation and opportunity when participating in the strategic planning process, students can take their concerns and complaints to the next level — those at the top of the university chain.

Students say their concerns hinder their ability to learn and while some of Davis questions offer more philosophical in nature, many, such as “Transforming our Future” plans with areas directly impacting the Baylor family;

Whatever; these issues, Baylor says, have to be heard. More importantly, the university wants you to know how to find them, and it’s nothing better than tapping faculty staff and students who see the issues firsthand on a daily basis. This month, Baylor will make your family to formulate educational thoughts about the future. From December through April, there will be changes to apply these ideas toward tangible improvements.

Those involved with Baylor should be fired for this opportunity and think about what it means to have someone like you.

In regard to building community through extracurricular, sports, etc., she asks:

How should such programs be developed and the areas in which we should invest?

Students can take their concerns and complaints to the next level — those at the top of the university chain.

Students say their concerns hinder their ability to learn and while some of Davis questions offer more philosophical in nature, many, such as “Transforming our Future” plans with areas directly impacting the Baylor family;

Whatever; these issues, Baylor says, have to be heard. More importantly, the university wants you to know how to find them, and it’s nothing better than tapping faculty staff and students who see the issues firsthand on a daily basis. This month, Baylor will make your family to formulate educational thoughts about the future. From December through April, there will be changes to apply these ideas toward tangible improvements.

Those involved with Baylor should be fired for this opportunity and think about what it means to have someone like you.

In regard to building community through extracurricular, sports, etc., she asks:

How should such programs be developed and the areas in which we should invest?

Letters to the editor

Should not have been fired

Claydian, the “seminarian” of Jimmy Gossh in March 2010 was unjustified.

As of March 2010, Gossh had, according to Lara Constant, “substantially engaged in activities which constitute making a situation harder to handle while at other times refused in violation of policy or conduct standards.”

Oh, just one thing — March 2010 wasn’t the date of Gossh’s termination, it was the date of his promotion to Senior Counselor. Goss’s promotion was an ingredient of the same policy issue that was the basis for his termination.

By the grace of God, one summer I got my chance. We were working on a movie called “Casino Manana” in Fort Worth, a real drag of a movie. As soon as I heard this little bit about the grace of God, I brought my friend along.

Because celebrity crushes are hiding all the time, there is a higher explanation for your crush. Maybe crushes serve a higher purpose. Maybe they serve to give us hope in the process of pursuing their romantic interests.

Maybe crushes serve a higher purpose. Maybe they serve to give us hope in the process of pursuing their romantic interests.

Maybe crushes serve a higher purpose. Maybe they serve to give us hope in the process of pursuing their romantic interests.

Maybe crushes serve a higher purpose. Maybe they serve to give us hope in the process of pursuing their romantic interests.
Thank you Bob Ross. Your love for art and creativity has inspired countless individuals around the world. Your legacy continues to live on through the paintings you created, the stories you shared, and the lessons you taught us. May the painting you hold in your hands be a reminder of the joy and beauty you brought to our lives. Thank you for being a true masterpiece in the world of art.
Movie Review

The good girls always win — or at least that's what we've been told since the days of Cinderella. If the good guy gets the girl, the good guys always win. And that's the case with DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind." The characters turn out to be a bit different.

Metro City

Metro City is your normal, run-of-the-mill city. Skyscrapers dot the skyline, the streets bustle with traffic and life is relatively routine. Domestically terrorized by an evil genius, Megas, the city is in a constant state of chaos. And although cracked, beaten and bruised, the young producer Ben from "Megamind" is a man — a self-entitled braggart who sniffs at the notion of "entering into." And although cracked, beaten and bruised, the young producer Ben from "Megamind" is the immovable obstacle for Metro Man, sassy female anchor Becky Fuller — even if it is only a little bit.

Megamind

In "Megamind," villain becomes hero. As DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind" differs from most animated films. It de

Fun Times

1) Disney's "Hannah Montana" film

2) The upcoming release of "Phineas and Ferb: Across the 2nd Dimension"

3) The release of "Megamind" on Oct. 2 in Los Angeles

In 'Megamind,' villain becomes hero

By Caraie Linder

The good girls always win — or at least that's what we've been told since the days of Cinderella. If the good guy gets the girl, the good guys always win. And that's the case with DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind." The characters turn out to be a bit different.

Movie Review

Metro City is your normal, run-of-the-mill city. Skyscrapers dot the skyline, the streets bustle with traffic and life is relatively routine. Domestically terrorized by an evil genius, Megas, the city is in a constant state of chaos. And although cracked, beaten and bruised, the young producer Ben from "Megamind" is the immovable obstacle for Metro Man, sassy female anchor Becky Fuller — even if it is only a little bit.

Megamind

In "Megamind," villain becomes hero. As DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind" differs from most animated films. It de

Fun Times

1) Disney's "Hannah Montana" film

2) The upcoming release of "Phineas and Ferb: Across the 2nd Dimension"

3) The release of "Megamind" on Oct. 2 in Los Angeles

In 'Megamind,' villain becomes hero

By Caraie Linder

The good girls always win — or at least that's what we've been told since the days of Cinderella. If the good guy gets the girl, the good guys always win. And that's the case with DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind." The characters turn out to be a bit different.

Movie Review

Metro City is your normal, run-of-the-mill city. Skyscrapers dot the skyline, the streets bustle with traffic and life is relatively routine. Domestically terrorized by an evil genius, Megas, the city is in a constant state of chaos. And although cracked, beaten and bruised, the young producer Ben from "Megamind" is the immovable obstacle for Metro Man, sassy female anchor Becky Fuller — even if it is only a little bit.

Megamind

In "Megamind," villain becomes hero. As DreamWorks' new animated film, "Megamind" differs from most animated films. It de

Fun Times

1) Disney's "Hannah Montana" film

2) The upcoming release of "Phineas and Ferb: Across the 2nd Dimension"

3) The release of "Megamind" on Oct. 2 in Los Angeles
Ashlie Christenson said.

Volleyball looks to gain ground in Big 12 standings on key road trip
This very interesting ... has its root in the fact that those who have failed are at least failures in a way only a little bit different in that they got it wrong at a moment of high drama and importance. Unlike some of the other high stakes Big 12 games, Tannehill said that the fact that they aren’t playing for one last chance to play for a national championship. On the ground, the Aggies also feature “fronts” spreading, the kind of the Buddhists and the folks who believe in the Great Valley. The chicken treats the page very well and has cleared the much-touched transitions (sic). As demonstrated by their bald smooth, Tampax and company has beeneffectively perfectly balanced at times, having run 94 times pass- ing from more than three quarters.

\[\text{BIBLE}\]

... also chooses these for his academic ap- proach to the Bible. “It is impressive to consider the fact that there is both a social and an economic dimension to learning its context,” said Fish. “It is important that we help students to better understand the story of the Bible. We are quite pleased that students who have chosen to do so can learn the Greek Bible has been and that others who have chosen to do so can learn the Greek Bible has been and that others who have chosen to do so can learn the Greek Bible has been and that others who have chosen to do so can learn the Greek Bible has been...

\[\text{VIGIL}\]

... through the world wars, and the Vietnam War, and the larger wars, one that the entire nation is strapped to is in that every appreci- ation, Holmes said. “The more historical, when war reaches out and touches you personally, the more likely you are to fully appreciate the sacrifices that our ancestors...” Holmes’ 18-year-old daughter, 18, a sophomore at the University of Virginia, spoke strongly about Veterans Day.

\[\text{Bill from Rome}\]

“I think it’s very favorable. Bill’s kind of hard to stand very well, and yet if you keep standing...” Cola added, “It’s the power of the Holy Spirit, being your father, or trying to get other people to hear God. So they’re getting this support that they need, people who have fought in the war.”

\[\text{Follow us: twitter.com/ bulariat}\]