Biographical Note:

Andrew Joseph Armstrong and his wife Mary Maxwell Armstrong were influential members of the Baylor University community. They are most famous for their efforts to establish the Browning Library (later named Armstrong-Browning Library) as the premier collection of Browning materials in the world.

Andrew Joseph Armstrong, the son of Andrew Jackson Armstrong and Lotta Forman Armstrong, was born in Louisville, Kentucky, on 1873 March 29. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in 1902 and a Master of Arts in 1904 from Wabash College in Indiana. For six months, he taught at East Texas Baptist Institute in Rusk, where he met Mary Maxwell.

Mary Maxwell, the daughter of Wilder Richard Maxwell and Melissa Anne Williams Maxwell was born in Buena Vista, Texas. She attended Baylor University and the University of Chicago. In 1902, she became a teacher at the East Texas Baptist Institute in Rusk, Texas, where her brother was the president. Although she only knew Armstrong for six months, their relationship blossomed.

Armstrong continued his education at the University of Pennsylvania, earning a doctoral degree. He once again took up the mantle of teaching at Wesleyan University in Illinois (1904-1907), Baylor University in Texas (1908-1909), and Georgetown College in Kentucky (1909-1912). Armstrong married Mary Maxwell on 1911 January 24. Their only child, Richard Maxwell Armstrong, was born in December of that year.

The Armstrongs moved to Waco in 1912 due in large part to Dr. Armstrong's new position as Chairman of the English Department at Baylor University. He held this office until 1952, attracting over 150 famous literary celebrities to visit Waco. During the summers, the Armstrongs conducted tours to Europe through their traveling company.

One of the Armstrongs' greatest shared passions was the poetry of Robert and Elizabeth Browning. During their tours of Europe, the Armstrongs collected many Browning materials. In 1918, Armstrong gave much of his collection to Baylor University to encourage the development of a Browning museum. The couple's efforts culminated in the dedication of the Armstrong-Browning Library in 1951 December.

A.J. Armstrong died shortly after this dedication on 1954 May 31. Mary Maxwell Armstrong continued as the director of new library for five years. Near the end of her life, Mary moved to Pennsylvania to live with her son. She died in Philadelphia on 1971 September 1. The Armstrongs are still remembered today for their work at Baylor University and the Browning collections there.

Scope and Content:

The Andrew Joseph Armstrong Papers range from 1869 to 1960. These materials, including correspondence, financial papers, legal documents, literary productions, and genealogical notes, are helpful to any researcher interested in the developments of Baylor University's English Department, Armstrong's touring company known as Armstrong Educational Tours and Armstrong's Tours of Distinction, and Armstrong's efforts to develop a Browning Library at Baylor University. The final series contains genealogical materials pertaining to Mrs. Mary Maxwell Armstrong's ancestry.

Organization and Arrangement:

This small collection has been organized into five series: I. Correspondence, II. Financial Documents, III. Legal Documents, IV. Literary Productions, and V. Genealogy. The correspondence series is organized chronologically. The four remaining series are organized according to the type of material. Series V. Genealogy pertains primarily to Mary Maxwell Armstrong and has been set apart from the remainder of the collection.

Restrictions: The collection is open for research.

Literary Rights Statement:

Notes:

This collection has had a number of different names over the years. It has been referred to as “Armstrong Papers,” “Armstrong Educational Tours,” and “Andrew Joseph and Mary Maxwell Armstrong Papers.” Much of the confusion stems from the fact that there were initially two collections; Dr. Armstrong’s and his wife’s were separated. The current organization was purposely designed to reflect this. The collection is entitled Andrew Joseph Armstrong Papers due to the prominence of Dr. Armstrong’s materials, but the section on genealogy has been set apart due to its distinctiveness from the remainder of the collection. This collection has also had numerous accession numbers: #1125, #1620, and #0449.
