Biographical Note:

Historical and/or biographical information on Francisco Banda has not been discovered beyond what is in the collection. Apparently Francisco Banda wanted to bring in the harvest of his crops and his landlord, Clark Herring, wanted him to leave the property. This resulted in a brawl that included Herring, Banda, Banda's wife, and a friend of Rosalio Delgado, a friend of Banda's. Pat Neff, Texas governor at the time, was asked to intercede. The ultimate result of the dispute is unknown.

With such an absence of information, Francisco Banda continues to remain anonymous.
