Scope and Content

The Kenneth Hazen Aynesworth Papers were acquired through multiple donations. The initial gift, given by Dr. Kenneth Aynesworth, was given in 1923 and constitutes the first donation to The Texas Collection. The second gift, a poster, was transferred from uncatalogued holdings on 1974 October 31. On 1975 January 24, another Aynesworth letter was transferred from uncatalogued holdings to his personal papers. Three scrapbooks were acquired from the Kenneth Aynesworth estate on 1975 April 1. The fifth gift, consisting of three items, was given by Kenneth's daughter Mrs. R.W. Crosthwaite on 1975 April 25. The final addition to the collection was given through Aynesworth's daughter on 1976 September 16.

The collection ranges in chronology from 1826 to 1965, with the bulk of the materials dated from 1930 to 1943. The largest series in the collection are Series I. Family and Series II. Correspondence. Dr. Aynesworth maintained a steady correspondence with nuclear and extended families as well as his friends and co-workers. Series VI. Literary Productions also contains a significant number of medical essays written by Dr. Aynesworth.

Administrative/Biographical History

Dr. Kenneth Hazen Aynesworth was a prominent surgeon in the Waco community during the early 1900s and a famous collector of Texan materials. The gift of his personal library and papers began what is now The Texas Collection.

Kenneth Aynesworth, the son of George Levin and Ellen Hickman Aynesworth, was born in Florence, Texas, on 1873 February 9. He attended Baylor University from 1892 to 1894, and was once a roommate of Pat Neff. In 1899, Aynesworth earned his medical degree from the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston. Three years later, on 1902 December 31, he married Maude Brian. The couple had four children: Kenneth, Jr., Edna Maude, Nancy, and Brian.

His work in the field of medicine brought many opportunities to Aynesworth. While finishing his doctoral degree, he interned at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. In 1902, prior to his marriage to Maude Brian, Aynesworth pursued postgraduate studies at the Friedrich Wilhelm University in Berlin. Returning to the United States, Aynesworth began his own private practice of general surgery in Waco, Texas. In 1909, he studied at the prestigious medical school at Johns Hopkins University. For over forty years, Dr. Aynesworth practiced medicine in the Waco area, primarily at Providence Hospital. Many of his medical research papers can be found in the collection. Despite his busy work schedule, Aynesworth was involved in a number of medical and local organizations including the Waco Board of Health, the Waco School Board, the Waco Planning and Zoning Commission, and the American College of Surgeons.

In addition to his professional work, Dr. Aynesworth was a collector of Texas history. In 1923, he donated hundreds of items to Baylor University in order to found The Kenneth Hazen Aynesworth Texas History Collection. To ensure the collection was properly funded, Aynesworth contributed to the institution on an annual basis. The name of the repository was changed to the Texas Historical Collection, which later became The Texas Collection.

Aynesworth devoted much of his spare time promoting the education of others. He donated a large collection of American Indian archaeological materials to the John K. Strecker Museum, now known as the Mayborn. For his generosity, Baylor University awarded Dr. Aynesworth with an honorary law degree in 1933. In the late 1930s, Aynesworth served as a regent for the University of Texas, where a small collection of his papers are housed to this day. On 1944 October 30, Aynesworth died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He is buried in Oakwood Cemetery.

Archival Arrangement

The Kenneth Hazen Aynesworth Papers were fairly well-organized prior to this latest level of processing. A detailed folder inventory and brief biographical sketch already existed. However, some of the clippings were deteriorating and the folders were over-stuffed. The current arrangement reflects the original order of the collection, but folder titles have been changed occasionally.

The Kenneth Hazen Aynesworth Papers now consists of eight series: I. Family, II. Correspondence, III. Photographic Materials, IV. Medical Practice, V. Subject Files, VI. Collected Materials, VII. Literary Productions, and VIII. Personal.
