Welcome to a new season of Baylor University School of Music newsletters! This has been an incredible year so far for the School of Music. Please enjoy the latest news concerning all of the activities of our students, faculty, and alumni.

On May 25, 2017, the School of Music presented the fourteen student winners of the Semper Pro Musica Solo and Chamber Music Competition in their Carnegie Hall debuts in Weill Recital Hall, at Carnegie Hall, New York City. Below you’ll see images of the winners of the two competitions. An appreciative audience of family members, faculty, staff, supporters, and general public enjoyed the superb musicianship on display all through the program. We could not have hoped for a better all-around experience in New York City.
The 2018 Semper Pro Musica Competition will present the finals of the Solo and Chamber Music Competition on Sunday, February 11, starting at 1:00 pm in Roxy Grove Hall. The Organ Competition will take place on Tuesday, March 13, starting at 7:30 pm in Jones Concert Hall. The winners of these competitions will be presented on two successive nights in New York City. On Wednesday, May 23, the Organ Winner will perform at St. Bartholomew’s Episcopal Church on Park Avenue, and on Thursday, May 24, the Solo and Chamber Music Winners will be presented at Weill Recital Hall in Carnegie Hall. Both recitals will start at 8:00 pm. To learn more about the 2018 finals or the 2018 trip to NYC in May, contact Jillian Gusukuma (Jill_Gusukuma@baylor.edu). Thank you for your support of music at Baylor University.

In the Spotlight

Homecoming
You are cordially invited to join us for the 2017 Homecoming Reception at the Baylor University School of Music. This year’s reception will be on Friday, October 20, from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. in the Cox Reception Hall at Armstrong Browning Library. We hope to see you there!
Robin Wallace, Professor of Musicology
Dr. Robin Wallace is recognized worldwide as a Beethoven scholar. His work on Beethoven continues with a book on Beethoven’s deafness that will be published by the University of Chicago Press in 2018. This forthcoming book has received enthusiastic praise from both the editorial and faculty boards at the Press, who have recognized the work as one of the most interesting and important books on Beethoven to come to their attention in recent years. Also slated for publication in 2018 is Wallace’s essay “The Curious Incident of Fidelio and the Censors,” which will appear in the Oxford Handbook of Music Censorship.

Wallace has also been collaborating with historical piano specialist Tom Beghin, who has recorded the last three Beethoven piano sonatas on a replica of Beethoven’s Broadwood piano. The recording, titled Inside the Hearing Machine, https://www.insidethehearingmachine.com, is slated for release in October 2017. It reflects a collaborative effort to understand how Beethoven’s deafness affected his relationship to the piano. The accompanying liner notes include an essay authored by Wallace, who also appears in a documentary video associated with the project.

Finally, summer 2017 saw the release of the first installment of Wallace’s translation and annotation of critical reception material on Beethoven’s works from Opus 73 onward. The 85-page document, containing all the early reviews of the Ninth Symphony, is now available on the website of the Center for Beethoven Research at Boston University. The center’s announcement of this important release reads:

The Center for Beethoven Research at Boston University is pleased to announce the online publication of Robin Wallace’s The Critical Reception of Beethoven’s Compositions by His German Contemporaries, Op. 125. This long-awaited publication provides English translations of the German-language reception of Beethoven’s iconic Ninth Symphony up to 1830. Wallace’s exceptional work marks the first of several projected online publications by the Center to complete the translation project started in the first two volumes of The Critical Reception of Beethoven’s Compositions by His German Contemporaries (University of Nebraska Press, 1999; 2001). These publications will ultimately make the remainder of the entire body of German-language Beethoven reception prior to 1830 accessible to English-speaking readers.

Men’s Choir Mission Trip to Kenya
During the month of June, seventy-five members of the Baylor Men’s Choir, under the direction of Randall Bradley, traveled to Kenya. During the trip they sang in churches, schools, and wherever they found a group of people gathered. The group painted a school, rebuilt a wall in that school, organized and served more than four hundred people in a medical clinic, presented five hens to over thirty families and twelve beehives to twelve families in a remote village, prepared a community garden, and provided nearly fifty desks to a local school. The group distributed shoes and underwear to every child at the school and presented each person in the village with a t-shirt. Dr. Bradley commented, “This was the most meaningful trip that I have ever experienced with the students. The guys served the people of Kenya sacrificially even when they were exhausted, hot, and hungry. They connected deeply with people everywhere we went and always had enough energy to sing and interact with yet another group of people who were eager to hear them sing. The trip was truly life-changing for all of us.”
On the way home, the group was recorded singing The Coconut Song (while waiting to disembark off the plane). The video was posted on the Facebook page of Emirates Airlines that quickly went viral. To date there have been more than 14M (that is million!) hits, 100,000 shares, 225,000 likes, and more than 15,000 comments. (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GSyP7xxLME) From there, People magazine, CNN Philippines, and Arab News began to cover the story. News outlets around the world have quoted the Baylor Men’s Choir’s statement from their Facebook page: “We are a choir who makes great music, serves the local Waco community, and touches the world with the love of Christ!”

Jazz Ensemble Mission Trip to Greece

In July, the Jazz Ensemble of The Wayne Fisher Jazz Program at Baylor University, under the direction of Alex Parker, traveled to Athens, Greece, on a ten-day mission trip sponsored by Baylor Missions. The group included theory professor and drummer Dr. Edward Taylor, partnered with The First Evangelical Church of Athens under the leadership of Pastor Panagiotis Kantartzis, and performed eight concerts throughout the city. Two of these noteworthy events included performing at area refugee camps, sharing the gift of music with the refugees who had been displaced from their homes and communities in Syria and lost everything in the process. This experience was deeply impactful on both the refugees and the members of the Jazz Ensemble. One English-speaking man from Damascus greeted Mr. Parker following the performance and said, “Thank you. Thank you for coming here and playing for us. You brought us joy. Sometimes we go weeks or months without joy, and today, you brought us joy. Did you see the looks on the faces of these people?” to which Mr. Parker replied, “Did you see the looks on the faces of my band? Tonight, we also had joy!”
The Jazz Ensemble visited some of Athens’s most famous sites, including the Acropolis, the Areopagus, the Agora, and the Olympic Stadium. They also traveled to the ancient city of Corinth, where the Apostle Paul resided between AD 50 and 52, and got to stand on the very site where Paul was tried before Gallio, the Roman Proconsul (Acts 18:5-12). The ensemble also traveled to Cape Sounion, the southernmost point of the Attican peninsula, to watch the sun set over the Mediterranean Sea. The nineteen students and two faculty members were forever changed through their experiences of getting to know the city of Athens, its people, its history, and its culture.

Our Students

Five graduate student members of the Baylor chapter of the Music Teachers National Association, Clara Boyett, Hayden Coie, Serenity Fung, Kristen Neel, and Blake Proehl, presented a session titled “Meaningful Memorization: A Holistic Approach to Secure Memory” at the national conference of the Music Teachers National Association in Baltimore, Maryland.

Three students in the M.M. program in piano performance and pedagogy were competitively selected to present research posters at the National Conference on Keyboard Pedagogy in Lombard, Illinois. Clara Boyett presented a poster titled “Confronting the Fears: The Teacher’s Role in Combating Performance Anxiety;” Serenity Fung presented a poster titled “‘Play Well with Others:’ Collaborative Piano for the Intermediate Student;” and Kristen Neel presented a poster on “Taubman and Alexander Approaches: Overviews and Pedagogical Applications.”

The Graduate School has recognized four MM in Piano Pedagogy students as exemplary graduate student teachers: Blake Proehl, Clara Boyett, Serenity Fung, and Hayden Coie. The Graduate School’s assessment for recognition is based primarily on student evaluations in courses for which graduate students are the Teachers of Record. These positive ratings reflect the careful mentoring that graduate piano pedagogy students receive from Lesley McAllister and the rest of the keyboard division’s faculty.

Zachary Barba, MM student in Vocal Performance, performed the role of Alidoro in Haymarket
Opera Company’s production of Antonio Cesti’s L’Orontea. He also presented a recital and master class as the 2017-18 Guest Artist for the JoAnn P. Hunt Lecture/Recital Series at Lynchburg College.

Parker Bowen, BME student, was selected to conduct in a reading session and participate in a conducting master class at the 2017 Texas Choral Directors Association convention in San Antonio. He was one of eighteen college students across the state to receive this opportunity.

Samuel Eatherton, PhD student in Church Music, published an article titled “Lutheran Sunday School Hymnals in English in the United States, 1819-1901” in the peer-reviewed journal, The Hymn.

Andrew Eaton, MM student in Vocal Performance, served as an apprentice artist with the Des Moines Metro Opera during the 2017 season, performing the role of El Payador in Maria de Buenos Aires by Ástor Piazzolla. Andrew also performed during their scenes program.

Ricardo Gómez, MM student in Violin Performance, performed Grand Duo Concertante for violin and double bass by composer Giovanni Bottesini with the Orquesta Sinfónica UANL in Monterrey, Mexico, in March of 2017. The bass soloist was Alijon Mamarasulov from Uzbekistan. The duo’s performance received a very positive review from Gabriel Rangel, who reported that the two soloists received a standing ovation from a very appreciative audience at the conclusion of the piece. Gómez also performed Tchaikovsky’s Meditation for Solo Violin with the orchestra.
Sarah Holevinski, senior BM student in voice, is helping to coordinate the Environmental Music Volunteer Program for the Baylor, Scott & White McClinton Cancer Center in Waco. This program brings together music volunteers to give patients and their families a musical experience to help cope with the anxiety brought on through cancer treatment. It also gives the volunteers an opportunity to share their music in an appreciative and accepting environment. Studies have shown that music can help to relieve pain and to reduce stress and anxiety for the patients and the family members. Physiological changes include: improved respiration, lowered blood pressure, elevated stress-relieving hormones, reduced heart rate, and relaxed muscle tension.

Nathan Myrick, PhD student in Church Music, has published an article titled “Relational Power, Music and Identity: The Emotional Efficacy of Congregational Song” in The Yale Journal of Music and Religion, an important and highly respected journal in the field of Church Music. Nathan also gave a paper at the Congregational Christian Music Conference at Ripon College, Cuddesdon, Oxford, UK, and will present a paper at the annual meeting of the Society for Ethnomusicology in Denver, Colorado.

Joseph Noelliste, Ph.D. Candidate in Church Music, has been appointed as Instructor of Music at Elon University in Elon, North Carolina.

Austin Rabon, BME student in Choral Music, performed the roles of Sorceress and the Sailor in Henry Purcell’s Dido and Aeneas at the Jeffrey Arnold Foundation Vocal Arts Retreat.

Julia Powers, MM Vocal Performance student, recently performed with the Utah Lyric Opera and Chamber Orchestra in excerpts as Dorabella in Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart’s Così fan tutte. Julia was also a winner of the Utah Vocal Arts Academy’s annual aria competition.

Jacob Sensenig, PhD student in Church Music, has published an article titled “In Defense of Repetition: A Philosophy for Planning Music in Corporate Worship,” in The Artistic Theologian, a peer-reviewed journal published by Southwestern Seminary. He also presented “Passin’ the Faith Along: The Gaither Vocal Band as the Pinnacle of Southern Gospel?” at the Society for Christian Scholarship in Music annual meeting.

Michael Skarke, BM student in Vocal Performance, performed the role of Corindo in Haymarket Opera Company’s production of Antonio Cesti’s L’Orontea.

Marcell Steuernagel, PhD student in Church Music, was awarded a Baylor Teaching Fellowship for the Summer 2017 term. The fellowship allowed him to integrate the library’s special collections that focus on hymnody into his fall teaching load in the School of Music Church Music program. He has also presented “From Australia to Brazil: Tracing the Transnational Connections of Christian Worship Music” at the Society for Christian Scholarship in Music annual meeting, and “Prophesying from the Stage: Contemporary Performance of Political Discourse in Evangelical Brazilian ‘Gospel’” at the Society for Ethnomusicology—Southern Plains Conference. His Brazilian Christian rock band Golgotha released its third album, Sinais.

Isaac Villaroya, composition student of Scott McAllister, has won second place in the Austin Symphony Young Composer Competition. His work, entitled Aegis, comes with a $2500 prize and a performance by the Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Tracie Walker, junior BME viola student of Kathryn Steely, was named one of five national finalists for the 2017 National Association of Negro Musicians Strings and Harp Scholarship Competition. Contestants competed on the state and regional levels. The final round of the national NANM Scholarship Competition was held in July 2017 at the Ninety-Eighth-Annual NANM National Convention in New Orleans, Louisiana. The required repertoire embraced the works of European and American composers, while highlighting the contributions of African-American composers. Tracie performed the first movement of Béla Bartók’s Viola Concerto and Sanctum by Adolphus Hailstork.

Katie Wick, MM Vocal Performance, student of Jamie Van Eyck, sang the role of Beth Moss in Aaron Copland’s The Tender Land for the Varna International Opera Program in Stara Zagora, Bulgaria. Katie was also a featured soloist in the Varna International French Opera Gala, as well as in recitals of American and Italian art song.

Brian Schmidt, A Cappella Choir/Chamber Singers (Associate Professor) joins the Ensembles Division, where he will teach graduate choral conducting and literature courses. Dr. Schmidt is the founder and Artistic Director of the South Dakota Chorale. He previously served at Duke University Chapel, where he conducted the Duke Vespers Ensemble.
Angela Yoon, Voice (Visiting Lecturer) joins the Voice Division. Ms. Yoon has completed coursework for the DM degree at Indiana University, where she also earned her MM degree. Her BM degree in vocal performance was completed at Baylor University.

Outstanding Faculty Awards

Baylor University recognized twelve faculty members as Outstanding Faculty in the areas of teaching, scholarship and contributions to the academic community for the 2016-17 academic year.

Nominated by their peers from the university’s twelve academic schools and colleges, as well as University Libraries, winners receive a cash award, a citation, and recognition at the Fall Faculty Meeting of the university. This year, two School of Music faculty members were among the twelve recipients of this distinguished recognition of excellence. In the area of Outstanding Teaching, Deborah Williamson, Associate Professor of Voice, was among seven recipients recognizing teaching excellence university wide. In the area of Outstanding Scholarship, Michele Henry, Professor of Music Education, was among four recipients to be honored university wide. Congratulations, Drs. Williamson and Henry!
Alfredo Colman, Associate Professor of Musicology/Ethnomusicology, has presented a conference paper on the music of Paraguayan composer Florentín Giménez (b. 1925) during the Annual Conference of the British Forum for Ethnomusicology (BFE) at the University of Sheffield. For more details, you may download a pdf file at https://c.ymcdn.com/sites/ethnomusicology.site-ym.com/resource/resmgr/docs/NewsItem_Paraguayan_music_ss.pdf
Eric Lai, Professor of Music Theory, joined his fellow board members of the Bruckner Society of America to present the Kilenyi Medal of Honor to Daniel Barenboim at a post-concert reception in Carnegie Hall. The concert, which featured Mozart’s Piano Concerto in C minor and Bruckner’s Third Symphony, was part of an historic cycle of the nine numbered symphonies of Bruckner, being presented by Maestro Barenboim and the Staatskapelle Berlin within an eleven-day period, the first time such cycle was performed in a single season in the United States. In April of 2017, Dr. Lai traveled to Oxford University to present “Clemens Krauss as Bruckner Interpreter” at the Bruckner Journal’s Tenth Biennial Readers Conference.

Michele Henry, Professor of Music Education, gave two presentations—“The Texas Music Assessment: Measuring Achievement of the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills in Music” and “Public Displays of Learning: Motivating Pre-Service Music Teachers Through Meaningful Assessment”—at the Sixth International Symposium on Assessment in Music Education in Birmingham, England. Dr. Henry serves as Chair of the Music Education Division.

Monique Ingalls, Assistant Professor of Church Music, traveled with church music doctoral students Nathan Myrick and Marcell Steuernagel to Oxford, UK, to take part in the biennial “Christian Congregational Music: Local and Global Perspectives” conference. Dr. Ingalls is one of the co-founders of the conference, which meets at one of the University of Oxford’s theological... colleges, and she serves as head of the conference's program committee. The four-day event drew eighty-six scholars of global Christian musical traditions from around the world (nineteen countries on five continents) and from across numerous academic disciplines, including musicology, anthropology, history, theology, and education. Myrick and Steuernagel were both recipients of scholarships awarded by the conference for outstanding student researchers to present their work at the conference. Dr. Ingalls also presented a research paper and convened a meeting for the advisory board of Routledge's Congregational Music Studies book series, for which she is a Series Editor. This fall, Dr. Ingalls will present research papers at the annual meetings of the Society for Ethnomusicology and the American Anthropological Association.

Nathan Myrick, Monique Ingalls, and Marcell Steuernagel at the Christ Church Deanery in Oxford, UK

Horace Maxile, Associate Professor of Music Theory, has published an article titled “Olly Wilson’s Contemporary Reflection on ‘I’ve Been ’Buked,’ an African-American Spiritual” in the peer-reviewed Perspectives of New Music (Vol. 54, No. 2).
Lesley McAllister, Associate Professor of Piano and Director of Piano Pedagogy, presented a session titled “Instant Calm: Smart Phone Apps to Decrease Performance Anxiety” at the national conference of the Music Teachers National Association in Baltimore, Maryland.

Jamie Van Eyck, Assistant Professor of Voice, recently sang with the American Bach Soloists Festival as mezzo-soprano soloist in Johann Sebastian Bach’s Mass in B minor and Cantata 214.
Laurel Zeiss, Associate Professor of Music History, wrote an article “For Whose Ear? The Reception of Mozart’s Music” that was published in Sensing the World: Taste and the Senses in the Eighteenth Century II (Trier: Wissenschaftlicher Verlag, 2017), a collection of essays developed through Landau-Paris Studies on the Eighteenth Century, an international consortium of scholars who focus on literature, art, philosophy, and music of the 1700s.

Faculty Receive New Steinway Grand Pianos

Bradley Bolen, Senior Lecturer in Piano, and Terry Lynn Hudson, Associate Professor of Piano, are the recipients of two new Steinway B grand pianos in their teaching studios. Both faculty members personally selected their instruments at the Steinway factory in Astoria, New York, in late May of this year. This took place during the School of Music’s trip to New York City to present Semper Pro Musica winners at Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall. The traveling party—composed of more than fifty Baylor students, faculty, and friends—visited the Steinway factory to tour the facility. Funds for these new pianos were made available by a generous yearly allocation that Baylor’s Provost Office is making available to the School of Music to upgrade pianos for student and faculty use.
Our Alumni

Clara Boyett (MM 2017 Piano Pedagogy and Performance) was named a runner-up in the 2017 Clavier Companion Collegiate Writing Contest.

Sarah Ewing (MM 2016 Violin Performance) former student of Eka Gogichashvili, was accepted at the University of Georgia to pursue a DMA under the guidance of Professor Levon Ambartsumian.

Jasmine Reed (BME 2013) received the Texas Choral Directors Association Young Director of Distinction Award, which recognizes a TCDA choral director who has taught for five years or less and achieved exceptional success in those years. She was one of only three award recipients in 2017.
Our Future

Board of Advocates

On December 1, 2017, the School of Music will host the fall meeting of the Baylor University School of Music Board of Advocates. The board is composed of alumni and business and professional leaders who are committed to the vitality of the School of Music at Baylor University. The Board helps the School of Music to strengthen its educational, creative, research, and outreach programs, improve its facilities, expand its base of support, and serve its alumni.

The 2017 Board of Advocates includes Oliver and Greta Abtahi, Cory and Amy Anderson, Babs Baugh, Barbara Elliott, Wayne Fisher, Ben Gatzke, Georgia Green, Giancarlo Guerrero, Carey and Stacie Hendrickson, Kurt Kaiser, Trammell Kelly, Kevin and Carole Lyons, Lyndon Olson, Jr., Allison Peterson, Nathan and Michal Taylor, James Williams, and Betty Wilson.

If you are interested in joining the Board of Advocates or giving to the School of Music, please contact Clayton Ellis, Director of Development, School of Music, Baylor University:
