Notes

Notes

It's an MBA (without the IOU).

And it's all mine.

I thought I learned a lot in college. And I did. But at Enterprise, I'm gaining so much knowledge, so fast. Every day is like a real world, business skills crash course. From day one, I was actively participating in everything from sales and marketing, to customer service, to accounting and finance. Enterprise trains me in every aspect of running a successful business and then gives me the opportunity to do it.

It's amazing how fast I was making crucial business decisions that effect the bottom line of an $8.2 billion industry leader. Also, if I need help, I'm not on my own. The people I work with are very friendly and very supportive. Under Enterprise's promote from within philosophy, I'm being mentored by successful, career-minded individuals who were once in my shoes. I now see why the people here, including the ones who went to business school, say that joining Enterprise was the smartest decision they've ever made.
