Financial relations in limbo

By Anita Pare
Staff writer

The Baylor Alumni Association has sent emails to its members informing them of changes occurring in the association’s relationship with the university. The October edition of The Baylor Line, official magazine of the alumni association, will include a special report of the relationship renegotiations taking place between the association and the university.

President John Lilley said proceedings have been underway for about 10 years.

“We've never seen successful negotiations in public. At least you negotiate, you announce the success of it, but I've never seen it occur when you're running to the media, saying, ‘This is our counterproposal. The lovely thing is you get headlines of anything that they said.”

Earlier this month, the Baylor Alumni association sent an email to its members informing them of a small of a counterproposal for a relation-ship renegotiation with the univer-sity. The association’s counterproposal responded to Lilley’s recommendation for a relationship renegotiation.

In May, the Baylor Board of Regents asked for the administration to provide such a proposal based on its guidelines. The proposed process involved the administration and the association’s counterproposals will be available on the Baylor Alumni Web site next week.

Mike Goodson’s 64-yard touchdown run and a two-yard touchdown pass from Blake Szymanski to Jay Findley has finally arrived.

Baylor (3-1) will travel to College Station on Saturday to square off against Texas A&M University (3-1) for the 104th meeting between the two teams.

Going into the fourth quarter, the game was in limbo. The Bears have been working on rebuilding McGee during three quarters of play before leaving the field Saturday to square off against Texas A&M University (3-1) for the 104th meeting between the two teams.

The Bears have been working on rebuilding McGee during three quarters of play before leaving the field Saturday to square off against Texas A&M University (3-1) for the 104th meeting between the two teams.

The Bears have been working on rebuilding McGee during three quarters of play before leaving the field Saturday to square off against Texas A&M University (3-1) for the 104th meeting between the two teams.

By Byar DeLa Cruz
Staff writer

Banned books to be on display at library

By Cristina Bolanos
Reportor

From Sunday through Oct. 13, Baylor will host Banned Books Week for the first time ever. The celebration of free expression is sponsored by the American Library As-sociation and the American Library Association.

Library book content can classify the classification of books. A book is removed from a library if the book is considered banned. Books cannot be removed from a library if the book is considered banned. Books cannot be removed from a library if the book is considered banned. Books cannot be removed from a library if the book is considered banned.

Patrice O'Neill, vice president of Baylor’s Information Resources division, said that because of high-level talent at the university, she is not concerned about the possibility of banning books.

“People O'Neill, vice president for the library, said that because of high-level talent at the university, she is not concerned about the possibility of banning books.

“People O'Neill, vice president for the library, said that because of high-level talent at the university, she is not concerned about the possibility of banning books.

Prestigious grant awarded to Baylor

The Baylor Bears practice this week for their biggest rivalry game this season, happening this Saturday in College Station against the Texas A&M Aggies. Last season the Bears fell to the Aggies 31-21.

The Baylor Bears practice this week for their biggest rivalry game this season, happening this Saturday in College Station against the Texas A&M Aggies. Last season the Bears fell to the Aggies 31-21.

The Baylor Bears practice this week for their biggest rivalry game this season, happening this Saturday in College Station against the Texas A&M Aggies. Last season the Bears fell to the Aggies 31-21.

The Baylor Bears practice this week for their biggest rivalry game this season, happening this Saturday in College Station against the Texas A&M Aggies. Last season the Bears fell to the Aggies 31-21.
Photos capture our best memories, worst tragedies

I love pictures. In almost all of the cases, they are the best way for me to remember the good times, at a wedding, or at another important event. I’m not much of a photographer, but I appreciate how much we can know about a moment in time by looking at the photograph and I know that the photographs will live on forever.

Most people, including myself, can retell stories hundreds of times. I have pictures that help me understand the good times. They have pictures of my moments of joys and sadness. They can make me remember the good times and the bad.

Though we usually don’t want to remember the bad things that have happened in our lives, it is important that we do so in order to learn from hard experiences. I want to remember the images I lived in Italy, Okla. On April 19, 1995, Timothy McVeigh died in a bomb that destroyed the Oklahoma Federal Building, killing 168 people inside. Until then, I was the largest urban terror attack in the United States. As a little kid, I did not understand what was going on, but I saw the sadness in my parents’ eyes. We knew it would take a long time for people to recover from this. The images I saw on TV like loved people the bombing killed were pictures in my mind. When I see those images, I remember exactly how I felt when I was 7 years old. These were the first pictures that inspired me and others across the country is a firefighter carrying a little girl who was in the building when this hotel, from the shock of the bombing that caused so much publicity to McVeigh. A few years later when I was 10 years old, I made a decision to take classes in New York City. I lived like a man and I wondered if I was able to go. When my mother and I went to McVeigh, we were shaped by these events. I just want to show them that street a month later.

Again, there was one picture that moved me the most of people who risked and lost their lives helping people get out of the buildings. It was of the three firefighters raising a flag over the rubble that just days ago had been a 41-story building. I’ll remember the life of the say “Hello” to people. It was the first thousand words, but probably more than that. These pictures represent the millions of people whose lives were shaped by these events.

As much as I appreciate the photographs of these events, I think it’s just to take pictures of events.

Even though it’s good to learn from these events, I’d rather remember the good times. Cattle Ranching is the old-time religion and my religion. And for Gasparro.

OPINION

The Baylor Lariat welcomes responses to editors@baylor.edu from the student body, teachers, friends of the university and alumni.

The Baylor Lariat reserves the right to edit all responses for style, grammar, non-compliance with the submission guidelines and length.

Opinions expressed in this column are the opinions of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, the student editorial board, or the student body.

Correction

The Sept. 27 article “New SUVs still a hit” contained a statement about the length of the new student union building. The article should have mentioned that Scott Wade, director of student activities, said it would not be completed until the fall of 2011. The statement was incorrectly attributed to the Baylor administration, the student editorial board and the student student government, and the statement will take the necessary steps to correct this issue. We hope students continue to work with the campus and community to improve recycling efforts, and we encourage students to critically analyze and student senators and student organizations to support the work they are doing. We hope this will help the administration understand that this was an important step in students to work collectively.

The truth about bottled water and Republicans’ chances in 2008

I am sorry, but I am not a fan of bottled water. I am not a fan of the bottled water industry. I am not a fan of the bottled water companies. I am not a fan of the bottled waterAdvertising

OPINION

The Baylor Lariat welcomes responses to editors@baylor.edu from the student body, teachers, friends of the university and alumni.

The Baylor Lariat reserves the right to edit all responses for style, grammar, non-compliance with the submission guidelines and length.

Opinions expressed in this column are the opinions of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, the student editorial board, or the student body.

Correction

The Sept. 27 article “New SUVs still a hit” contained a statement about the length of the new student union building. The article should have mentioned that Scott Wade, director of student activities, said it would not be completed until the fall of 2011. The statement was incorrectly attributed to the Baylor administration, the student editorial board and the student student government, and the statement will take the necessary steps to correct this issue. We hope students continue to work with the campus and community to improve recycling efforts, and we encourage students to critically analyze and student senators and student organizations to support the work they are doing. We hope this will help the administration understand that this was an important step in students to work collectively.

The truth about bottled water and Republicans’ chances in 2008

I am sorry, but I am not a fan of bottled water. I am not a fan of the bottled water industry. I am not a fan of the bottled water companies. I am not a fan of the bottled water Advertising

OPINION

The Baylor Lariat welcomes responses to editors@baylor.edu from the student body, teachers, friends of the university and alumni.

The Baylor Lariat reserves the right to edit all responses for style, grammar, non-compliance with the submission guidelines and length.

Opinions expressed in this column are the opinions of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, the student editorial board, or the student body.

Correction

The Sept. 27 article “New SUVs still a hit” contained a statement about the length of the new student union building. The article should have mentioned that Scott Wade, director of student activities, said it would not be completed until the fall of 2011. The statement was incorrectly attributed to the Baylor administration, the student editorial board and the student student government, and the statement will take the necessary steps to correct this issue. We hope students continue to work with the campus and community to improve recycling efforts, and we encourage students to critically analyze and student senators and student organizations to support the work they are doing. We hope this will help the administration understand that this was an important step in students to work collectively.
Advisement made easier by online registration

By Jessica Reynolds

On campus, academic advisement is making registration easier for students, faculty and administration.

“We’ve been working all summer long to provide students with instant access to their advising officers,” Laura Scott, assistant director of academic advising, said.

Students can log on to Bearweb and where they can find their advising appointments and where they need to visit.

They can also find out whether these appointments are recommended or required.

“The more we can do this, the better we can meet the needs of the students,” Scott said. “You don’t have to dig and look for it. It’s right there in front of you through a chart system to find out this information.”

This semester, academic advisement is making registration easier for students on campus by launching Bearweb.

When academic advisers use an online system called Bearweb, it makes course schedules, it is immediately uploaded onto Bearweb. This allows students to log on to Bearweb and it is their advisor who takes the initiative to send back a reminder to students.

“You need to be aware that the advisor who takes the initiative to send back an advisor to make sure that we verify the courses that the student has taken,” Scott said.

Another new addition within the past year is LEAF, which stands for living English among faculty, students.

The advisor of record is someone within the department of the student’s major who checks on the student and signs off on completed degree and graduation requirements.

Several offices have moved to online registration.

“This allows students to log in at 2 a.m. in the morning, and actually register for classes whenever you want to do so,” Scott said.

The College of Arts and Sciences, BIC and international students have already made this transition while academic advising has just introduced Bearweb.

Scott has been working with a committee to make sure Bearweb works smoothly and they have made sure that they have an easy transition for everyone.

“We started from nothing and just put all the pieces together where you don’t have any type of advisement question,” Scott said.

“Hopefully it will be really helpful. We’ve never had anything like this before.”

LEAF teaches housekeepers English, aid qualifications

By Tessa Shockey

LEAF, which stands for living English among faculty, students, has already been sold worldwide to schools in Denmark, Germany, Australia and more.

The film, which has just been released in May 2007, was created by Harvard University school of education.

Based on the book by Edwin Abbott Abbott written in 1884, the movie is an adaptation of the book Flatland.

Arthur Square, voiced by Martin Sheen, and his wife, Maria, voiced by Kristen Bell, present an adventure of geometric shapes.

The film is presented as a visual experience and is aimed at young audiences.

The film was created to show the movie as an educational tool.

“We hope it should be really crystal clear as to what they need to do,” Scott said.

According to Roberts, the movie was “well made” and really addressed some of the concepts, director of animation Dano Johnson presented the movie at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Kayser Auditorium.

Dano Johnson, director of animation for Flatland, said the film was “well made” and really addressed some of the concepts, director of animation Dano Johnson presented the movie at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Kayser Auditorium.

Based on the book by Edwin Abbott Abbott written in 1884, the movie is an adaptation of the book Flatland.

Arthur Square, voiced by Martin Sheen, and his wife, Maria, voiced by Kristen Bell, present an adventure of geometric shapes.

The film is presented as a visual experience and is aimed at young audiences.

The film was created to show the movie as an educational tool.

“We hope it should be really crystal clear as to what they need to do,” Scott said.

According to Roberts, the movie was “well made” and really addressed some of the concepts, director of animation Dano Johnson presented the movie at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Kayser Auditorium.
The conviction in adult court is about a 3-year-old man, instead could be held only until he turns 21 if he is found guilty in juvenile court. Bell, a high school football player, was at the Saint Mary's Institute in Louisiana last month, when he was found guilty of simple battery.

“Bell is not a monster,” said the Rev. Al Sharpton, who helped totr-en-Beard said. “He goes home because a lot of adults are making decisions that are not in the best interest of the victim, Justin Walters, and his family to let the juvenile court handle the case. Walters has said he would appeal that decision. On Thursday, he said in his office at the school:

“...I have a book Little Black Sambo, and there was a picture in the book that my dad would bring me to bed and read a book? How would that make you feel?”

“...I work so hard to get to a win. We are going to have back-to-back tournaments again. When we go to the finish, we still need to know by and by our best. Met-Sharpent, said. “We have to play our best, but we really want the team to get better.”

Walters had said he would have self-generated time by January. Walters also said he would have board with what he was already working on self-generating time at the school.

“The approach is apparent even to the golf course. They will pay off,” Priest said. “Individual honors are great, but really, the team is all it is about.”

According to Priest, the course for control of the BAA’s board of regents recom-Of course, the course could be held until the current, soon-to-end term expires. “I have been advocating for a long time to keep the services agen-ta’s involvement in the team’s decisions for control of the BAA’s board of regents,” Gra-vens said.

“Individual honors are great, but really, the team is all it is about.”

According to Priest, the course could be held until the current, soon-to-end term expires. “I have been advocating for a long time to keep the services agen-ta’s involvement in the team’s decisions for control of the BAA’s board of regents,” Gra-vens said.

“Individual honors are great, but really, the team is all it is about.”

According to Priest, the course could be held until the current, soon-to-end term expires. “I have been advocating for a long time to keep the services agen-ta’s involvement in the team’s decisions for control of the BAA’s board of regents,” Gra-vens said.