Archivist's Notes: Records present were previously stored by the Comptroller's office and released to Bob Bullock after a state archives review showed they were no longer necessary for state retention. Most of the records of Bob Bullock as Comptroller remain the property of the Comptroller's Office. Because of this, we cannot consider the records in the Comptroller's Collection complete.

Scope and Content

From 1975 to 1990, Bullock's political career encompassed 16 years of public service as Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts. The Bob Bullock Comptroller of Public Accounts collection is divided into six series: Correspondence, Issue Files, Itineraries, Notebooks, Policies and Procedures, and Reports.

The sheer transformation and growth of the Comptroller's office is evident in the physical record of this series and is its strength. Bullock completely reformed the Comptroller's Office, and every subseries in this series reflects that in some manner. The issue files, notebooks, policies and procedures, and reports subseries contain the most visible evidence of the transformation and growth Bullock accomplished in his 16 years as Texas' Comptroller of Public Accounts.

Administrative/Biographical History

In 1969, Bullock joined the staff of incoming Governor Preston Smith and served as appointments secretary and general counsel before Governor Smith named him Secretary of State in 1971. Bullock's service as Texas Secretary of State was marked by major election law reforms, including Bullock's implementation of the first state-financed party primaries and an extensive broadening of campaign finance disclosure requirements.

Bullock left state service at the end of 1972 and again set up an Austin law practice. By the end of 1973, he was well on his way to his first statewide race for State Comptroller.

He served as Comptroller for the next 16 years, turning the office into a model agency with a special emphasis on financial research and taxpayer service.

Bullock recognized early in his career the value of the press. When he became Comptroller in 1975, an important part of his administration was to begin diligent collection of state sales taxes. He discovered that too many businesses collected state sales taxes from their customers, but failed to report and remit those taxes to the state. As part of a "voluntary compliance" campaign, Bullock would invite the press to Comptroller visits to businesses owing significant amounts of state sales taxes. Armed with estimates of past due taxes, Bullock and Comptroller enforcement officers would arrive unannounced at a business and ask for payment of back taxes. If the business owners did not pay, enforcement officers would seize inventory and cash registers. These raids on delinquent businesses spawned cartoons, editorials, and invaluable press coverage, including some suggestions that Bullock was grandstanding. But the statewide press coverage of "Bullock's Raiders" made important and valuable impressions on delinquent taxpayers and on the average tax paying Texan.

Bullock's service as Comptroller ended in 1990 when he was elected to the office of Lieutenant Governor.

Series 2: Issues. 1971-1991

Administrative/Biographical History

The Issue Files are arranged into three subseries: Education, General, and Redistricting. The Education section contains correspondence, memos, reports, bills, news clippings, brochures, and publications. The General Issue subseries is large and encompasses all issues not classified as Education or Redistricting. The Redistricting subseries material covers from 1970 to 1981. Located in these files is information on census data, court cases, legal briefs and research, congressional district summaries, Senate maps and proposals, and news clippings on redistricting dating 1971-1972 and 1979-1980.
