Scope and Content

The Clark Thompson papers focus on Representative Thompson's years of service in the United States House of Representatives. The papers range from 1931 to 1966, but the bulk of the collection dates from 1959-1966, the last few years of Thompson's time in Washington.

The Administrative and Agencies series consists of materials related to government agencies in the 1960's, including Thompson's final years in the House of Representatives. This series contains information on various government agencies, such as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Federal Aviation Administration, and the Small Business Administration.

Thompson served on several committees over the course of his legislative career. Series II. Committees reflects the committees on which he served, primarily the Agricultural, Maritime and Fisheries, and Ways and Means Committees.

Series III. Correspondence mostly contains the replies Thompson sent to various inquiries. In most cases, the original letter is not attached. The correspondence deals with various political and personal topics.

Materials in Series IV. Departments primarily consist of executive department information from the Agriculture, Post Office, and Health, Education, and Welfare Departments.

Series V., Legislative, contains bills and legislation from Thompson's congressional terms. The materials are sorted according to the Congress (in two-year increments). One significant collection of folders pertains to the Panama Canal, an issue Thompson focused on specifically. The series has materials that span from the 1940's to the 1960's.

Series VI. Personal, as the name suggests, consists of various personal papers, including invitations sent to Thompson regarding events in both Washington, D.C. and the state of Texas. Clark and Libbie Thompson were popular figures in Washington's social scene in the 1950's and 1960's. The series also houses campaign materials from Thompson's first foray into politics as well as records from his last years in office.

Series VII. Public contains Thompson's communications with congressional districts, other branches of the government, and members of the media. This series illustrates how Thompson's methods of communicating with his constituents evolved dramatically over time.

Series VIII. Scrapbooks contains eight scrapbooks spanning the years 1946-1964. These are filled with photographs, clippings, and other memorabilia from Thompson's tenure in Congress.

Thompson's adopted state, Texas, is featured in the final series of his collection, Texas Affairs. This series includes a wide range of materials about his state and local area. As Galveston is a major coastal city, most of the documents in this series relate to the use and construction of local harbors, weather disasters, and public water access. Several folders pertaining to the Texas City Disaster contain correspondence, litigation, and legislation dealing with the aftermath of an industrial accident that occurred in 1947.

Biographical History

Clark Wallace Thompson III was born on August 6, 1896 in La Crosse, Wisconsin to Clark Wallace Thompson and Jessie Marilla (Hyde) Thompson. Five years later, his family moved to Oregon where Thompson spent the remainder of his childhood and adolescence. He attended the University of Oregon at Eugene where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta, an international social fraternity. In 1917, Thompson enlisted in the United States Marine Corps (USMC) and served for the duration of America's involvement in World War I. Following the war, he remained a member of the Marine Corps Reserves and in 1936 organized the Fifteenth Battalion of the USMC Reserves. His decades-long involvement in the military and his passion for national defense heavily influenced his political career.

In 1918, Clark Thompson married Libbie Moody, the daughter of William L. Moody, Jr. and Libbie Rice Shearn of Galveston, Texas. The Moody family had been long-established in Galveston society and business where the newlyweds soon settled. The Thompsons had two children, Clark and Libbie.

Thompson served as the treasurer of the American National Insurance Company and left to start his own mercantile firm which he owned until 1932. He was also secretary-treasurer of the Cedar Lawn Development Company until 1934. In 1933, Clark Thompson was elected to the House of Representatives from the 7th district of Texas to fill the vacancy left by the death of Representative Clay Stone Briggs. He served as a Democrat until 1935.

With the outbreak of World War II, Thompson was once again called upon to serve his country and was ultimately sent to the southwestern Pacific theater where he was the oldest officer in his unit. In 1943, he returned to the United States and became the Director of the Marine Corps Reserves. He held this position for three years until his retirement as a colonel in 1946. For his service, Thompson was awarded the Legion of Merit.

From 1947 to 1966, Thompson returned to politics and represented the 9th district of Texas after significant redistricting. Throughout his political career, Thompson served on several different committees including Agriculture, Maritime and Fisheries, and Ways and Means. While living in Washington, D.C., Clark and Libbie Thompson were important members of the social scene in the 1950's and 1960's. Their house was often referred to as the "Texas Embassy" or the "Texas Legation."

Thompson was a lifelong member of the Episcopal Church as well as a member of the American Legion. He was also involved in the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Texas State Society, and was a thirty-second-degree Mason and Shriner. Clark Thompson passed away on December 16, 1981, in Galveston, Texas, and was buried in Galveston Memorial Park Cemetery.

Archival Arrangement

The Clark Thompson papers were previously processed and originally organized into five series arranged alphabetically. Three original subseries (Administrations/Agencies, Committees, and Departments) were removed from the Legislative series and each became a new, separate series. The Correspondence series was rearranged topically for ease of access.

The current arrangement has nine series, and all are arranged alphabetically. The nine series are: Administrations/Agencies, Committees, Correspondence, Departments, Legislative, Personal, Public, Scrapbooks, and Texas Affairs.

Series 1: Administrations/Agencies. 1959-1966, undated

The Administrations and Agencies series contains materials that pertain to subsets of the executive and legislative branches from the 1960's. This series focuses on documents related to government administrations like the Federal Aviation Administration, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Small Business Administration. The folders are arranged mainly in alphabetical order, and overall, the series is in good condition.

Series 3: Correspondence. 1959-1966

This series contains correspondence from Clark Thompson's legislative office. These letters deal with various political topics, including healthcare, firearms, and Civil Rights legislation from 1959 to 1966. Letters of a more personal nature are also included in the series but are far less common. Most of the correspondence is comprised of Thompson's replies to letters, but a few of the original letters to Thompson are present as well. The series is in good condition.

Series 4: Departments. 1955-1966

Series IV. Departments deals primarily with executive departments. While the Agriculture, HEW (Health, Education, and Welfare), and Post Office Departments comprise most of the material, each of President Lyndon Johnson's departments - apart from Transportation - are represented here. The series is mostly in alphabetical order and is in good condition.

Series 5: Legislative. 1931-1966

Series V. Legislative includes general files, bills, legislation, speeches, voting records, and news releases for most of Thompson's congressional terms. These materials are arranged according to Congressional session. The bulk of these materials comes from Thompson's service in the 87th, 88th, and 89th Congresses (the 1960's).

There are several folders that contain information on the Panama Canal, one of Thompson's legislative focal points. Materials from three decades - spanning the 1940's to the 1960's - relating to the administration of, proposed expansions to, and maintenance of the canal are present. Issues of the "Congressional Record" and various reports are arranged by topic, while folders containing bills, correspondence, and newspaper clippings are all arranged chronologically. The series is in good condition.

Series 6: Personal. 1933-1965, undated

Series VI. Personal is moderately-sized and consists of three primary types of materials: administrative, correspondence, and campaign. The administrative materials contain alphabetical office records from the 1960's, Thompson's final decade in office. Most of these records pertain to office equipment and personnel.

The correspondence within this series is comprised primarily of invitations accepted by Clark Thompson from the late 1950's and early 1960's, highlighting the varied events attended by one of Washington's most sought-after and well-connected socialites. At the time, the influence of Clark and his wife Libbie was such that their home was often referred to as the "Texas Embassy." In addition to invitations, there are also wide-ranging conversations with constituents and informants from his congressional district that kept him abreast of important developments back home.

The campaign materials recount Thompson's first foray as a U.S. Representative in 1933 as well as his subsequent campaigns for political office from 1948 to 1964. These folders are arranged by date. The series also contains numerous folders on significant developments within the Democratic Party as well as national and Texan politics. The series is in good condition.

Series 7: Public. 1946-1966, undated

This short series focuses on Thompson's communications with the executive branch, other congressional districts, and the media. There are several folders of communications concerning fellow Texan and President Lyndon B. Johnson as well as visits by Thompson and his constituents to the White House. Additionally, there is a copy of the Voting Rights speech delivered by President Johnson to Congress - a measure that Thompson firmly opposed.

There is also a short section of folders dealing with national and international correspondence. These materials focus on the issues of immigration from 1947 to 1963, as well as foreign affairs and communications from outside of Thompson's district.

Thompson's mode of communication to his district developed and changed over time. The introduction of television is showcased in this series with invoices and scripts from Thompson's appearances on screen (1961-1966). His use of the radio, however, goes back much earlier as his radio scripts demonstrate. As early as 1946, Thompson was actively using this medium to reach his constituents. Overall, the series is arranged topically, then alphabetically, and is in good condition.

Series 9: Texas Affairs. 1946-1966, undated

This extensive series contains a wide array of materials related to Thompson's adoptive home state (Texas) and region (Galveston). There is a large selection of speeches and articles written by or about Thompson ranging from 1958 to 1966. These folders are followed by a voluminous collection of constituent correspondence. Arranged topically, this section highlights the range of requests and comments that Thompson received. The next segment of folders is arranged by the name of the city and county involved. These titles are further described with the topic of discussion. Because Thompson represented a coastal region, many of the issues he dealt with addressed the usage and construction of local harbors as well as the consolidation and creation of several military installations in the area.

This series also contains materials pertaining to four major topics and events that impacted Thompson's district: Hurricane Carla, the Public Water and Resources Department, rivers and harbors, and the Texas City Disaster. It is worth noting that each of these topics deals in some way with Thompson's district's proximity to the Gulf of Mexico and the opportunities or problems that closeness caused. Documents relating to Hurricane Carla chronicle Thompson's response to the damage caused by the storm's landfall in 1961. The southern part of his district had been particularly affected. The Public Water and Resources Department folders focus on the actions of the boards responsible for each of Texas's prominent river basins that flow into the Gulf of Mexico. Materials about rivers and harbors are alphabetically arranged by topic and contain information on navigation and improvement projects from 1947 to 1962. Lastly, the Texas City Disaster folders contain correspondence, litigation, and legislation in the wake of the 1947 harbor explosion that claimed 581 lives from Thompson's district. Overall, the series is arranged topically, then alphabetically, and is in good condition.
