Availability of Tuition Remission for Retirees

Tuition Remission for Retirees

No tuition remission benefits are provided to retirees.

Tuition Remission for Spouse and Children

Tuition remission benefits per eligible spouse and child are limited to one of the following options:

- One undergraduate degree or special course of study, plus post-baccalaureate (up to 36 hours of credit hours) or graduate credit hours not to exceed 2 normal years of academic work as appropriate to the degree/certification program
- One undergraduate degree or special course of study, plus 6 quarters of Law School - for children only

Understanding the Limitations of Tuition Remission Post-Retirement

- Current student(s) of retiring active faculty/staff member enrolled at retirement date may complete academic degree/certification program in which they are enrolled.
 - For example, if the completed degree is undergraduate, the student may be eligible for the non-undergraduate options.
- Future student(s) of retiree, may receive one year of tuition remission for each year of service earned by the retiree (aggregate of such students' years of tuition remission not to exceed years of service by retiree).
 - For example, if retiree had 20 service years, then a "future" student could apply four years to an undergraduate degree and 2 years to a graduate degree to use up six years of the 20 years
