Baylor Law.
Docket Call is published by Baylor Law for its alumni, faculty, staff, students, supporters, and friends. Established in 1857, Baylor Law was one of the first law schools in Texas and one of the first west of the Mississippi River. Today, the school has more than 7,400 living alumni. It is accredited by the American Bar Association and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools.

A Message from Dean Toben
With the population of the earth at approximately 7.6 billion, the idea of making a meaningful difference in the world can at times seem specious. But we need not make a direct difference in an untold number of lives. We can make a difference in the lives of those around us. Our actions can have a meaningful and rippling effect, transcending all manner of borders. At Baylor Law, we emphasize the ripple effect that each of us can have upon the lives of many. In this issue of Docket Call, we highlight some of these ripple effects and connections, and focus on the launch of our first international, hands-on field placement program, the Zambian Juvenile Justice Project.

Also included is a Roll Call showcasing the commitments of the Baylor Law Alumni Association’s Lifetime and Sustaining Lifetime members along with the officers and members of the association’s Executive Committee. I am frequently privileged to meet with Baylor Lawyers at alumni gatherings all around the state and beyond. I am honored to share in the camaraderie of such groups. Through the Baylor Law Alumni Association, you have many opportunities to join together with Baylor Lawyers in friendship and fellowship throughout the year.

We also commend the service of the Honorable Rex Davis, who after nearly 20 years of molding and preparing generations of Baylor Lawyers, has retired from his adjunct teaching role. A gifted judge, lawyer, teacher, colleague, and friend, Justice Davis’ presence will certainly be missed.

While for many the summer can offer a reprieve from the hustle and bustle of the daily routine, the summer months at Baylor Law are marked by a lively culture of programs, service, and community. This issue of Docket Call features photos from a few of the exciting events which unfolded at Baylor Law this summer. Ranging from the third year of the Business Law Boot Camp and the inaugural edition of the Criminal Law Boot Camp, to a visit from the 7th Court of Appeals, TDCAA’s week-long Advanced Trial Advocacy Course, and Baylor Law’s ninth year hosting Top Gun — one of the nation’s most prestigious, invitation-only mock trial competitions — the hallways of the law center were rarely quiet.

This summer also brought the opportunity to further honor, remember, and celebrate the life of the late Governor Mark White, JD ’65, with a philanthropic dinner in Houston. A gathering of over 200 friends, family, and admirers came together in an evening of remembrance and fellowship — truly honoring Mark’s legacy of service. The event also served as the public announcement of the Governor Mark White Chair in Public Service and Public Interest fundraising campaign.

I am frequently delighted, although never surprised, by the profound impact Baylor Lawyers continue to make in the lives of others and in our world — impacts that can only expand and ripple outward with each passing year.

I hope you enjoy this issue of Docket Call.

Brad Toben, JD ’77
DEAN OF BAYLOR LAW
Baylor Law student Fallon Seitz takes a photo at the Kanyama neighborhood in Lusaka, Zambia, during UP Zambia’s Communication, Cooperation and Coordination Initiative (CCCI) outreach day. The Kanyama neighborhood is where the majority of the incarcerated juveniles in Kamwala Remand Prison are from.
Educating men and women for worldwide leadership and service is the mission of Baylor University and is what compels Baylor Law to provide experiential learning opportunities that connect theory and practice. Baylor Law’s commitment to leadership in the preparation of practice-ready professionals drives innovation and deeper engagement with our students who will become the next generation of Baylor Lawyers. In an increasingly global society, cultural literacy and expanded perspectives on advocacy must inform the practice of law. In this story, we highlight Baylor Law’s global connections, from alumni and students whose international origins and experiences have shaped classroom conversations to the launch of our first global field placement program through an intensive, hands-on partnership in Zambia initiated by Baylor Law Professor Brian Serr.
Centrally located in sub-Saharan Africa, Zambia is among the region’s more politically stable countries, with a well-defined justice system based upon the English common law. Yet pervasive poverty undermines justice there by limiting the courts’ capacity to serve the nation’s fast-growing population, which is expected to triple by 2050. As a result, the accused — among them, many youth — often languish in adult prisons without representation or recourse.

“Because of the lack of resources and the breakdown in the Zambian court system, you may have a juvenile who sits in prison for weeks or months without even being charged, maybe months or years before trial, and none of that time counts,” Baylor Law’s Associate Dean Leah Jackson Teague said. “If they’re convicted, their time served doesn’t start until they get to their assigned prison.”

Baylor Law students are helping to alleviate the plight of juveniles lost in the Zambian court system. The Zambian Juvenile Justice Project provides our students with a professional opportunity to work internationally as advocates within the Zambian justice system. The project launched this summer under the leadership of Professor Brian Serr, a 32-year law professor known for his expertise in appellate advocacy and his central role in Baylor Law’s international summer programs for more than 20 years.

“We had a study abroad program in Guadalajara for about 15 or 16 years. As the director of that, I went to Mexico every summer and taught international human rights related courses there,” Serr said. “We also have an international summer abroad program in St Andrews, Scotland, and I’m in charge of one part of that program.”
The Zambian Justice Project builds upon Baylor Law’s experience in delivering international programming. The successful Academy of the Advocate at St Andrews, now in its sixth year, is an immersive trial and appellate advocacy program set amidst the rich history of British common law and its enduring traditions. The Academy provides valuable context for the skills it hones and the higher purpose of their application.

In contrast to a study abroad program, the Zambian Justice Project is Baylor Law’s first global field placement. It is modeled upon Pepperdine Law School’s Sudreau Global Justice Program, which sends students on summer clerkships in Uganda and Rwanda.

“It’s not like a faculty-led study abroad program,” Serr said. “It’s a field placement program, such as what students might participate in for an organization in New York City or Los Angeles. It just happens to be in Africa. Our students are getting law school credit for it because they’re working directly under a Zambian lawyer.”

At Pepperdine’s invitation, Serr participated in the Sudreau Global Justice Program with an eye toward creating a similar opportunity for Baylor Law students in Zambia, where Baylor has numerous connections through its collaboration with Northrise University.

“In the summer of 2016, I traveled to Uganda to see what Pepperdine was doing, and I was impressed,” Serr said. “I wanted that for our students, so I got back here and began trying to make some connections.”

One of Professor Serr’s key connections in launching the juvenile justice project in Zambia was with Sara Larios, a commercial lawyer based in Zambia and the only American licensed to practice in the country. In 2015, Larios founded Undikumbukire (“Remember Me” in a local tribal language) Project Zambia, known as UP Zambia. A volunteer stint at the Kamwala Remand Prison providing blankets to incarcerated Zambian youth — whose pleas to “remember us” she could not forget — prompted Larios to leave a private practice to take up their cause.

According to UP Zambia’s website, most juveniles in conflict with the law in Zambia cannot afford a lawyer, and legal aid resources are very limited. Juveniles must defend themselves alone in court without even a basic understanding of their rights and legal procedure, resulting in overly severe charges, one-sided trials, numerous delays and resets, and convictions upon weak evidence. Compounding the injustice are the abhorrent conditions in the Zambian prisons where they are detained indefinitely — a stark reminder that justice delayed is justice denied.

UP Zambia provides legal representation to imprisoned Zambian juveniles and advocates for a more restorative justice system. By mobilizing global support, UP Zambia is fueling Zambia’s existing, but under-resourced legal system that otherwise lacks sufficient support — in the form of lawyers, judges, courts, and funding — to effectively carry out justice.

“It’s as if you’ve got all the parts of the car, but you don’t have gas and oil,” Serr said, describing the situation. “The car’s not going to function. It’s going to break down pretty quickly.”
Sarah Beth Toben ZAMBIAN JUSTICE PROJECT

Second-year Baylor Law student Sarah Beth Toben was among the first group of students to participate in the Zambian Justice Project this summer. With an undergraduate degree in environmental studies from Baylor, she is preparing for a career in environmental advocacy.

“I found out through experience and observation that law was a way to have an even larger lasting impact on environmental issues,” Toben said. “Law ultimately is not about the work you do behind a desk, but rather about the human impact that work has upon a client’s life.”

Toben pursued the global field placement in Zambia based in part on a mission trip to Ghana she’d taken as an undergraduate student-athlete with Baylor’s softball team. The trip revealed the capacity of global engagement to illuminate one’s calling — a discernment she continues to seek within the context of her legal education and aspirations.

“The Zambia trip interested me because the chance to make a meaningful difference is one of the reasons I entered law school,” she said.

Toben’s time in Zambia proved impactful. Despite the thorough orientation, she said nothing could have prepared her for the overwhelming conditions within the prisons that she witnessed. Yet she found inspiration working alongside Zambian interns whose unwavering commitment to their juvenile clients was not contingent upon recognition or reward.

“The work the interns do there is unending, but the focus on changing just one child’s life, day by day, is inspiring,” Toben said. “It can be exhausting and frustrating. I hope that one day I will be able to work with a sustained passion and love for people who are on the margins.”

Toben observed how the interns’ tireless advocacy fostered mutually transformational relationships. The caring way her Zambian colleague, Kabota, interacted with the juvenile clients and their effect on him reminded Toben to trust God’s plan for her life — shaping her vocation and outlook on the future.

“After this trip, I hope to bring back an emphasis on pro bono work that comes from a less self-directed place in our hearts,” Toben said. “Once you have this flip of initiative in your heart, your personal work will be more fulfilling and better quality.”

Seeking to develop the Zambian Justice Project in collaboration with UP Zambia, Serr and Baylor Law alumnus Andrew Bruster, JD ’02, a successful plaintiff’s attorney with a heart for Africa and a history of charitable work on the continent, visited the organization in May 2017. Impressed with UP Zambia, Bruster pledged his support and subsequently raised enough funds for the organization to employ a second full-time attorney.

“UP Zambia is a fantastic organization led by talented and dynamic individuals and is a perfect fit as a partner for Baylor Law in launching this now collaborative relationship,” Bruster said. “I’m involved because investing in the lives of kids to give them a better future is always a worthwhile investment. Plus, being able to do so with a committed local partner like UP Zambia that is interested in long-term change is a great recipe for large-scale transformation.”
UP Zambia has cultivated cooperative relationships with the court system, defender services, and prison administrators necessary to advance juvenile cases through legal representation and reform. With its network established and expanding, the organization effectively utilizes interns to supplement the efforts of Zambia’s mere 1,000 lawyers serving a growing population.

Eight Baylor Law students lent a hand this summer as participants in the Zambian Justice Project’s inaugural venture. Two groups each worked with UP Zambia for 30 days, the duration of their work visas, collectively serving for nearly two months. Beyond the cost of airfare, their stay was inexpensive, including lodging in furnished apartments with 24-hour security. Going forward, alumni support will help offset educational excursions outside the capital city and other expenses.

Associate Dean Teague and long-time prosecutor Beth Toben traveled with the first group in early June and joined them at the orientation organized by UP Zambia. The gathering brought together participants from other fields and countries, reflecting continued expansion fueled by a recent grant award from a German foundation in coordination with the United Nations.
"The Academy’s School of the Trial and Advanced School of the Trial provides trial advocacy training unlike that found anywhere else," said Professor Powell. “Central to that is the recognition that every great trial lawyer is a master storyteller. As instructors, we don’t just lecture on great advocacy, we help students plan, craft, and deliver the kind of stories that persuade juries and change outcomes.”

Professor Brian Serr, who leads the School of the Appeal, believes advocacy, whether oral or written, is both an art and a skill. “At the School of the Appeal, experienced appellate advocates guide students in a study of the art of advocacy by examining historically significant examples of persuasive oral and written communications,” Serr said. “Afterward, students apply what they’ve learned in exercises designed to develop brief-writing and oral advocacy skills. All this happens in the shadow of the ruins of St Andrews Cathedral — the destruction of which is historically attributed to the very real power of advocacy.”

In 2018, more than 65 students from law schools all over the country participated in the Academy of the Advocate in St Andrews. Since the debut of the program, over 350 students have completed the program. While Baylor Law students make up a significant portion of the students attending the program, several law schools send their top advocates to learn more about the art of advocacy. In addition, prominent professors from top advocacy schools around the country are invited to the program to share their expertise with the students.

The program unfolds in Parliament Hall in St Andrews. Parliament Hall was the seat of Scottish Parliament for part of the 17th century. The students also take a field trip to the court system in Dundee, to learn about the history and development of Scottish democracy and trial by jury.
Sahil Nooruddin hails from Karachi, Pakistan, where his grandfather attended law school and served as a judge. Motivated by the opportunity of an American education for their only child, Nooruddin’s parents moved to Dallas in 1998, when he was five years old. Despite living in the U.S. for most of his life, Nooruddin, a permanent U.S. resident, still feels a strong connection to his homeland, where his mother’s side of the family continues to reside.

Nooruddin began his studies at Baylor Law in 2017, inspired by his grandfather’s legacy. He says since arriving in Dallas as a child, he has felt welcome and accepted in the U.S. His personal experience with the protracted and complex immigration process contributed to his interest in law school and a desire to take on pro bono immigration cases in the future.

Nooruddin is enthusiastic about his Baylor Law experience, characterized by professors he describes as phenomenal and interested in the success of their students. He credits each of his professors for making the course work interesting and intellectually stimulating. In particular, he admires the commitment of Professor Beth Miller and Professor Larry Bates, whose teaching styles have been a catalyst that drives Nooruddin to share their commitment to transactional law.

“I absolutely love each of the classes I’ve taken with Professor Bates, and a huge part of that is his teaching style,” Nooruddin said. “I’ve only had Professor Miller for one class, but I admire the commitment she has to the material and her desire for all her students to succeed in not only her class but in life.”

Nooruddin interned this summer with Locke Lord LLP in the corporate group, and his pursuit of corporate transactional opportunities stems from the success of his father in building a business from scratch, having come to the U.S. with nothing. Committed to doing his best, Nooruddin attributes his work ethic to helping out with the family business in the summers — a work he began in middle school. Likewise, he touts the Baylor Law Career Development Office as a valuable resource dedicated to ensuring student access to professional opportunities that align with their goals.

“The Career Development Office has been super helpful and always willing to take the extra step to make sure the students get to do what interests them,” Nooruddin said.

With their support, he looks forward to returning to Dallas to pursue a career in mergers and acquisitions, a longtime interest solidified — and soon-to-be equipped — by his Baylor Law education.
Lacking funds for fuel, prison vans sit idle, further delaying justice and contributing to prison overcrowding. During her stay, Dean Teague learned that upwards of 60 youths were confined each night in a 10-foot-by-10-foot holding cell awaiting transit. She said the problem is so pervasive that the Baylor Law students established a GoFundMe account to raise money for fuel.

“In Zambia there is a basic criminal justice system that ought to work fairly,” Teague said. “Unfortunately, due to the lack of resources that is not the reality you see when you visit the courts and you visit the prisons.”

The magnitude of the mission in Zambia requires not only boots on the ground, but solidarity. A vision for the future of the Zambian Justice Project involves facilitating a productive exchange between the Zambian and U.S. judiciaries — perhaps including a judicial externship. A strong partnership with Zambian judges, with whom Professor Serr is in conversation, will advance long-term solutions and expand opportunities for participation.

Feedback from UP Zambia indicates that Baylor Law’s fervor for the cause is a source of encouragement to those who daily strive to address the Zambian justice system’s myriad challenges and needs. In turn, Zambian interns are modeling for Baylor Law students the meaning of advocacy work within a system marked by poverty and underdevelopment.

“It was an honor and a privilege to meet and work with the amazing team Sara Larios has assembled,” Teague said. “Their dedication to their clients inspired and moved us all!”

Through these relationships, the Zambian Justice Project is establishing a long-term presence and platform for effecting systemic change through shared vision, constructive collaboration, and enduring hope.

Andromeda Vega Rubio was born and raised in Frankfurt, Germany, the child of a Spanish mother and Chilean father. In 2016, she relocated from Frankfurt to Killeen, Texas, with her husband of 13 years, a U.S. serviceman from Kerrville now stationed at Fort Hood after more than a decade based in Wiesbaden, Germany. The couple requested the assignment since its proximity to Waco would allow Vega Rubio to attend Baylor Law.

Now a second-year Baylor Law student and permanent resident of the U.S., Vega Rubio chose Baylor for its litigation program and low student-teacher ratio, primarily because English is her third language. Pending a formal interview, she will soon become a U.S. citizen and be eligible for legal internships as well as jobs with American firms and government agencies or contractors, both domestically and abroad.

Vega Rubio worked diligently toward her dream of attending law school in the U.S. In addition to learning English and transitioning to a new culture, she has three children, ages 12, 11, and 6. For most of their lives, she has balanced motherhood with her educational pursuits.

She notes that in Germany, law school follows immediately after high school, whereas the U.S. system entails interim studies toward a bachelor’s degree. So, in 2008, just two years after beginning to learn English, Vega Rubio enrolled in the University of Maryland’s online program. She took one course a semester, including the occasional evening course held at the U.S. Air Force Base in Ramstein, Germany, and graduated in 2014.

Vega Rubio believes international students can enhance their peers’ Baylor Law experience. Class discussions benefit from her insights about the ways certain American laws, customs, and moral ideas differ from the European mentality.

“I believe by sharing how things work on the other side of the world, students get to see that not every country does things alike,” Vega Rubio said.

Her American peers are interested in Europe, and Vega Rubio believes international students make foreign locales and cultures seem more accessible. Her global perspective also helps to dispel misperceptions about certain countries, fostering a more authentic image of her homeland that challenges stereotypical assumptions.

“It seems many are very interested as to how the European lifestyle is and how we do things abroad — what we eat or how the educational system works,” Vega Rubio said.

Vega Rubio describes her time at Baylor Law as very positive and says the community has been very welcoming. Initially interested in criminal law, she says her professors’ engaging and enthusiastic instruction has expanded areas of interest and taught her “never to say never” to new possibilities.
About
Global Baylor

Baylor’s Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP), Global Baylor: Addressing Challenges to Human Flourishing, seeks to prepare students to live in an increasingly global community where challenges to human flourishing — in health, in economic opportunity, in political and religious freedom, and in all areas of human existence — are of paramount concern.

Through the QEP, Baylor is creating a campus-wide awareness of critical human concerns and nurturing a commitment to seeking solutions to them. Launched in August 2018, the ten-year-plan features four interrelated initiatives designed to foster identified student learning outcomes:

GLOBAL CHALLENGES will introduce students to the concept of global equity and human flourishing within the context of a particular global issue, beginning with global health, a challenge that cuts across all academic disciplines and invites participation from the entire Baylor University community.

ENHANCED INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL EXPERIENCES will provide new and expanded opportunities for student travel with more intentional focus on student learning outcomes and experiential learning through existing strategic partnerships and the addition of new global destinations and partners across all disciplines.

DIVERSITY ABROAD will make international opportunities more readily available to students from diverse or underrepresented backgrounds and first-generation students through new scholarship opportunities and innovative models for international experiences.

GLOBAL BAYLOR will seek to coordinate the many international events and activities across campus and beyond in order to maintain our community focus on global challenges and also to celebrate our responses to these issues through student, staff, and faculty research and engagement.

John Middleton
BAYLOR LAW ALUMNUS AND INTERNATIONAL LAWYER

Baylor Law alumnus John Middleton, JD ’07, had long considered law as a possible vocation, influenced by his father’s career as a prosecutor with the U.S. Attorney’s Office. His career in international law, however, wasn’t so much the product of planning as it was the convergence of preparation and opportunity.

Middleton serves as Assistant General Counsel at the International Air Transport Association (IATA), an opportunity he humbly attributes to “a bit of good luck.” During his tenure at Haynes and Boone, LLP, the firm’s representation of IATA expanded to include bankruptcy matters. A colleague assigned to that caseload was unable to travel to Geneva, Switzerland, so Middleton went instead and continued in the role. IATA invited him onboard as in-house counsel in 2011, and he relocated with his family to Geneva.

“I did not set out to practice international law or to live abroad, but a number of things fell just the right way and led to an offer that would ultimately change my life,” Middleton said.

After earning an undergraduate degree at Baylor, where he was a University Scholars major with concentrations in language, religion, and history, Middleton began Baylor Law. A generous scholarship to Baylor Law kept the East Texas native in Waco, where he was glad to continue college friendships and his position playing trumpet for the Baylor Courtside Players.

“The practical focus and rigor of Baylor Law — and Practice Court — served me very well in my first years as a lawyer, as I felt like I was much better prepared both in the courtroom and in the office for the challenges that were thrown my way,” Middleton said.

At IATA, Middleton oversees bankruptcy and suspension matters as well as legal representation of the company’s Worldwide Airport Slots team. The magnitude of the role is challenging, encompassing the varied insolvency systems of more than 50 countries and requiring expertise in the foundational facets of the airline industry. He also serves as Regional Counsel for IATA’s Africa-Middle East region, headquartered in Amman, Jordan, which Middleton describes as a growth market despite its challenges in the legal and compliance areas.

Encouraged by his wife to seize the opportunity and equipped by his education to grow in his profession, Middleton believes he is up to the task.

As president of the Baylor Law Alumni Association, I ask you to support the Baylor Law Alumni Association by renewing your membership dues or joining the Association. Your financial support enables the Baylor Law Alumni Association to provide alumni programming, events, and networking opportunities for our community of over 7,400 Baylor Lawyers.

Membership dues can be paid online at www.baylor.edu/law/give. Payment plan options are available. All membership dues are tax deductible. You may pay your membership dues by check. Please make sure to indicate “Baylor Law Alumni Association membership dues” in the memo line. Checks may be mailed to: Baylor Law Alumni Association, One Bear Place #97026, Waco, Texas 76798. The Association’s fiscal year runs from September 1, 2018 to August 31, 2019. Dues received between those dates will be reflected in your records accordingly. For questions regarding your dues, or current status, please contact Barbara Lindsay at Barbara_Lindsay@baylor.edu.

BAYLOR LAW ALUMNI ASSOCIATION DUES STRUCTURE

FELLOW – Fellow status contributes at least $100 per year for five consecutive years. The $500 contribution can be accelerated.

TITANIC ON TRIAL

In collaboration with the Mayborn Museum’s “Titanic: The Artifacts Exhibition,” Baylor Law Practice Court students tried a fictional civil lawsuit using facts and evidence from the exhibition. The trial took place at the Mayborn and was open to the public. Voir Dire in the case was held at the Hill County Courthouse, one of the oldest and most historic courts in Texas.
“At Baylor Law, I learned to think critically and solve problems, which are essential to the practice of law. However, even more importantly, Baylor Law reinforced to me the values of friendship and service. Daily walks past the inscription of Micah 6:8 on the exterior of the Sheila and Walter Umphrey Law Center also refocused my perspective — act justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with your God. A higher calling awaits, and Baylor Lawyers are uniquely equipped to respond and invest in their communities.”

BETH DONALSON HAMPTON, JD ’10

“In a world that seems chaotic and polarizing at times, my Baylor Law degree means more than the literal opportunities it provides. It is a call to action. As Baylor Lawyers, we have learned that we can make a difference in the world around us. Although we come from all walks of life, we are united by our alma mater through honesty, integrity, and civility.”

PATRICIA DIXON, JD ’10

Congratulations to the Baylor Law graduates who officially became Baylor Lawyers during the 2018 Spring Commencement ceremony on April 28. The class of 74 graduates selected Professor Bridget Fuselier, JD ’98, to deliver the commencement address. Professors Gerald Powell, JD ’77, and Jim Wren, JD ’80, hooded the graduates. Alexandra Burke gave the invocation, and Rachel Koehn addressed her fellow graduates as the class’s highest-ranking student.
The Honorable Rex Davis, JD ’74, adjunct professor of Client Counseling since 1999, retired from his teaching role in July. Justice Davis will continue as a justice on the Tenth District Court of Appeals in Central Texas.

Justice Davis was first appointed to the bench in May 1996, elected in a general election in November 1996, and served as the court’s Chief Justice from 1996 to 2003. After a brief hiatus from the court in 2003 to resume private practice as an attorney, he was re-elected to the appellate court in 2008 and again in 2014 for a term that will expire at the end of 2020.

Before receiving his J.D., cum laude, from Baylor Law, Justice Davis pursued undergraduate studies at Temple Junior College and the University of Texas at Austin. He was named Outstanding Young Lawyer by the Waco-McLennan County Bar Association in 1982, and is a past president of the Waco-McLennan County Bar Association.

“I have loved teaching here at Baylor Law,” Justice Davis said upon announcing his retirement. “The folks I’ve worked with here couldn’t be finer or nicer.” He added that the decision to step down wasn’t an easy one, but the time was right. One of the things he’ll miss is when ‘his kids’ ‘come back years later and say ‘Judge, remember when you taught about such-and-such in class? Well, I’ve used that in my practice.’ That for me is a great joy.”

“We greatly appreciate Justice Davis’ faithful commitment to our students and his significant contributions to our program,” Associate Dean Leah Teague said.

“By teaching the Client Counseling course four times a year for almost 20 years, he coached and mentored almost 2,000 of our students while teaching them about the importance of creating an effective relationship with their clients,” Teague said. “In the traditional Baylor fashion, he also helped them figure out how to do it!”

As part of each class, Justice Davis provided each student with multiple opportunities to practice engaging with clients during those crucial first meetings. “We want to thank Justice Davis for the countless hours dedicated to creating valuable, practical experiences for his students. Justice Davis is another example of a Baylor Lawyer who selflessly gives of his time and resources to make our program extraordinary,” said Dean Teague.

In addition to his role as justice on the 10th District Court of Appeals, Justice Davis will be working with the newly established statewide Judicial Commission on Mental Health on its Collaborative Council. The Commission was created by a joint order of the Texas Supreme Court and the Court of Criminal Appeals and will work to develop, implement, and coordinate policy initiatives designed to improve the courts’ interaction with — and the administration of justice for — children, adults, and families with mental health needs, an area of passion for Justice Davis.

Justice Davis is married to the former Donna Barnes and they have three sons, three daughters-in-law, and six grandchildren. He has been active in civic affairs, including service as a past board member of D.A.R.E., the American Red Cross, and Midway Independent School District. Currently, he is a board member of the Waco Symphony and the McLennan Community College Foundation. He served as chair of the Woodway Planning and Zoning Commission and is a retired Rotarian. He is an active member of the YMCA, a member and former teacher at Columbus Avenue Baptist Church, and a former Little League coach.
SEVENTH COURT OF APPEALS

Three justices of the Seventh Court of Appeals, Amarillo, visited Baylor Law to hear oral arguments in three cases. The hearings, which were open to students and the general public, were held in the Jim Kronzer Appellate Advocacy Classroom and Courtroom.

BUSINESS AND CRIMINAL LAW BOOTCAMPS

Now in its third year, the Business Law Boot Camp is an intensive, week-long course directed by Professor Elizabeth Miller, JD ’85. The course — underwritten by Kim and Bill Shaddock, JD ’77, and sponsored by Beard Kultgen Brophy Bostwick & Dickson, Haynes and Boone, and Greg Looser, JD ’94 — is taught by experienced practicing transactional attorneys. The Criminal Law Boot Camp, directed by Professors Jim Wren, JD ’80, and Elizabeth Fraley, JD ’88, is a new three-day course held between the spring and summer quarters. The course is taught by distinguished prosecutors, defense lawyers, and judges.
TOP GUN

Philip Pasquarello of Drexel University Kline School of Law was declared the winner of Baylor Law’s 2018 Top Gun National Mock Trial Competition, one of the nation’s most prestigious, invitation-only mock trial tournaments. Eric Fleddermann of University of Michigan Law School was runner-up. Jordan Dickson from Georgetown University Law Center, and Pablo Robles from UC Hastings College of Law were the semi-finalists. A special thanks to underwriter Naman Howell Smith & Lee, PLLC, sponsor Weinberg Wheeler Hudgins Gunn & Dial, and all our Baylor Lawyers and friends who served as jurors and judges.

William Edward “Bill” Hailey, JD ’49, passed away April 9, 2018. Hailey was a longtime San Antonio attorney, war veteran, and former college basketball star. He was a world-class competitor and survivor as well — having been the last living member of a World War II bomber jet crew. As a junior in college, he enlisted in the military immediately after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He rose quickly through the ranks of the U.S. Army Air Corps as a commissioned officer and pilot who flew 26 missions in the European theater in a B-24 bomber.

Hailey attended Baylor University and Baylor Law and led the Bears basketball team to the Southwest Conference Championship in 1946 as the captain of a team that featured three war veterans and two freshmen in the starting lineup. He entered the legal profession as an attorney in Amarillo where he met a church pianist, Eleanor Mansfield. They fell in love and were married in 1951 before they relocated to her hometown of San Antonio. He worked as a lawyer for a family business and later went into the homebuilding business with his father. He eventually returned to practicing law — he and son Joel shared a law office for many years before Hailey retired in his early 80s. Hailey is survived by his wife Ann; his sons Michael and Joel; his step-children Thomas Wharton (Diane), Laurie Nowak, Susan Gay (Eric); and six step-grandchildren.

Godfrey R. Sullivan Sr., LL.B. ’51, 97 years young, passed away on July 9, 2018, at Baylor Scott and White Hospital in Austin, in the company of his wife, Viola Sullivan.

Sullivan had a full and fascinating life. He was born in Lawrence, Kansas, and grew up working on his grandfather’s oil rigs. As the son of an early executive of General Motors, he moved constantly through the U.S., living in Lawrence, Kansas, Dallas, Detroit, and Los Angeles. At age 17, he joined the U.S. Navy and served for 10 years as a Chief Petty Officer on PBY sub-chasers. He was the sole survivor of one airplane crash in Hawaii, and one of two survivors of a PBY crash in the Panama Bay. He served in Hawaii at the time of Pearl Harbor, and was stationed throughout the South Pacific for the duration of the war. During a trip home to Highland Park, he met the lady of his dreams, Viola W. Jensen, and they married in 1943.

At the end of WWII, he returned home and graduated from Baylor Law. He practiced law in Waco for thirty years, and was active in the Fidelis Masonic Lodge. Sullivan loved his family, their farm, and their Quarter Horses. He was a long-term member of St. Alban’s Church in Waco.

Sullivan was preceded in death by his daughter, Augusta Sullivan James.

Survivors include his loving wife, Viola Sullivan; his daughter, Meredith Perkins and husband, Wesley, grandsons, Ross, Scott and Donovan Perkins, as well as seven great-grandchildren; and his son, Sullivan R. Sullivan Jr., and wife, Suzanne, and daughters, Hayley and Shea Sullivan.

Hulen Ford, JD ’56, was born Dec. 15, 1935, and passed away June 9, 2018. He was a true gentleman, respected lawyer, and known for his honesty and fairness. Ford was an avid Baylor fan and both a true American and Texan. He graduated from Baylor University and Baylor Law and dedicated his life defending the less fortunate for more than 50 years. Anyone who met him knew of his love for his family and country and a clever wit that could bring laughter to anyone in his presence.

Ford is survived by his wife, Louise Ford; son, Neal Ford; daughters, Meredith Camp and Kathleen Ford; siblings and four grandchildren.

Hon. Frank C. Price, JD ’63, was born Nov. 17, 1938, and passed away May 19, 2018. He graduated from Rice University in 1961 and Baylor Law in 1963. Price credited both schools for his professional and ethical roots and repaid his debt of gratitude by being a lifetime supporter of both.

He started his legal career as a prosecutor, serving five years as a Harris County assistant district attorney, followed by private practice as a criminal defense lawyer. In 1974, he became the youngest appointee in history when he was appointed by Gov. Briscoe to serve as the judge of a criminal court, the 209th District Court. In 1981, Gov. Clements appointed Price to serve on the First Court of Appeals, beginning his years of service on the appellate bench. Eventually he served as a visiting judge in both trial and appellate courts, serving more than 30 years in the Texas State Judiciary.

Price personally wrote every appellate opinion himself, with hundreds of published opinions to his credit.

Price was among the greatest practitioners of sleight of hand and close-up magic, performing as a professional magician at Magic Island and other venues. He served as president of the Texas Association of Magicians. He maintained his passion for sports including water skiing, snow skiing, and handball. He coached many championship teams during his 15 years of coaching the Post Oak Little League, including teams on which his own sons played.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Charles and Evelyn Price of Houston. Price is survived by his wife Melissa Price; son, Frank Christian Price Jr. (Gayle); son, Bradley Laurence Price (Gerri); four grandchildren; his brother and sister and their children.

Cecil William Emerson, LLB ’65, of Dallas, passed away July 1, 2018. He was born in San Antonio, Texas on November 2, 1934. Emerson graduated from North Texas State (now UNT) in 1962 and was a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity. From there, he attended Baylor Law and graduated in 1965. Emerson held many positions throughout his long career in law, beginning and ending in the Dallas County District Attorney’s Office where, as Chief Felony Prosecutor, he handled many high-profile cases. In between his work as a prosecutor in the DA’s Office, Emerson held positions with the U.S. Customs Service, the U.S. Attorney’s Office, as the Regional Director of the Federal Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Agency, and in the U.S. Justice Department as assistant of the special counsel to President Nixon during Watergate. Emerson was not only a proud United States Army Veteran (1954-1956), but was a member of many organizations, namely the American Judicature Society, the National District Attorney’s Association, and the Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity. Emerson was an avid reader of western novels and historical biographies, sometimes going through an entire book in a day. Over the years, he shared special bonds with his beloved German Shepherds and Black Lab (Kate, Victoria, and Kathie) and had a great fondness for horses. Emerson was preceded in death by his wife of 53 years, Joan, in 2011. He was born May 26, 1943 to Rowena and William H. Roberts, Jr., who preceded him in death, as did his brother Jack. He is survived by his five children, Caro Goettee and husband George of Houston, Brooke Emerson of Dallas, Emerson Christopher Emerson of Dallas, Lindsay McCrary and husband Scott of Rockwall, Chase Emerson of Dallas, and two grandchildren, Heather Goettee of Houston and Cameron McCrary of Rockwall.

William H. Roberts, LL.B. ’67, passed away July 7, 2018 in Lubbock. He was born May 26, 1943 to Rowena and William H. Roberts, Jr., who preceded him in death, as did his brother Jack. He is survived by his three daughters, Robin Going (Scott), Allison Evans (Kirk) and Lindsey Roberts, and their families. Roberts graduated from Garland High School in 1961, Baylor University in 1965, and Baylor Law in 1967, and served as a defense attorney in Dallas for over 40 years. In 2017 he was recognized by the State Bar of Texas for fifty years of service. He sincerely valued his many friendships within the Dallas legal system, many of which lasted over decades. He truly loved what he did, and fulfilled his lifelong wish to spend time at the courthouse and the golf course for as long as possible. Roberts treasured his wide network of friends, including many dating back to his years in Garland and at Baylor, where he was President of Taurus social club. As a resident of Dallas throughout his adult life, he maintained many friendships throughout the Dallas area. Finally, Roberts had great memories and friendships in Brady, Texas, where his parents lived and where he regularly played in their Memorial Day golf tournament. And certainly, Roberts loved his family. He was blessed earlier in life with two daughters who blessed him with four grandchildren, Sarah, Scotty, Carter, and Jack. Later in life, he was blessed with another daughter, Lindsey. Roberts’ family, while saddened that his time with them was cut short, are thankful for having had him in their lives.

Robert E. “Bob” Barron, JD ’74, was born Sept. 3, 1950, and passed away May 5, 2018. He attended Baylor University, where he earned a BBA in 1972 and graduated from Baylor Law in 1974. He received his Certified Public Accountant license in 1976. Barron was board certified in consumer bankruptcy law and practiced bankruptcy law for over 40 years. Though being a partner of Barron & Barron, LLP was a big part of his life, nothing overshadowed the love and devotion he had for his children and grandchildren. In the summer, he enjoyed spending time with his grandchildren in Ruidoso, New Mexico. He loved experiencing the outdoors with them and, together, they enjoyed sports, farming and fishing.

He was preceded in death by his mother, Billie Marie Barron. He is survived by his wife, Rose Mason Barron; three children, Robby Barron (Kim); Diane Carter (Shawn); Craig Barron (Kara) their mother Margaret Somers; two step-children; his father; brothers; and 11 grandchildren.

Nancy Katherine Matchus, JD ’81, was born Sept. 28, 1955, and passed away April 27, 2018 after a long battle with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. She graduated from Northwestern University in Evanston, IL, with a Bachelor of Science degree in communication in 1978. In 1981, she earned her juris doctor from Baylor Law.

Matchus’ legal career was one of public service, working as an attorney for the state with the Texas Department of Water Resources and the Texas Water Development Board and later with the City of Austin. In 2008, she received the Outstanding Achievement Award from the Travis County Women Lawyers’ Association. She was a long-time active member of the League of Women Voters and served on the board of the organization’s Austin group.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Daniel Fallwell, and her father, Edward John Matchus Sr. Survivors include her mother, Beatrice Matchus, her siblings, and their families.

Frank Nevin Cremer Jr., JD ’85, was born Aug. 2, 1961, and passed away May 1, 2018. He was raised all over the world due to his father’s position in the United States Army. He came to Baylor University to study geology and law and met the love of his life, Kimberley, as a student.

In addition to practicing law with his beloved partners and associates at Davis, Gerald & Cremer, in Midland, Texas, Cremer was a loving father and husband. He enjoyed taking his children camping with the YMCA Indian Guides and Princeses, coaching little league sports, and attending orchestra and band concerts.

He was a devoted philanthropist and was passionate about serving High Sky Children’s Ranch, an organization that helps abused and neglected children. In addition to his time spent with High Sky, he was a faithful member of First Baptist Church serving as a deacon, Sunday school director, and a member of the church orchestra.

He is survived by his mother Fran; his wife Kim; his sons, Paul and Joey; his daughter Abbye; and his sisters and their families.
