Law School's Commitment to Transactional Law Training: Please attach information about your law school's commitment to transactional law training through courses, programs, participation in regional and national transactional law competitions, internal competitions, clinics, and other experiential learning opportunities. Please include information about the individual who will serve as the competitor's coach for the competition and whether the competitor's coach will accompany the competitor to the competition in person. A school's commitment to providing a faculty member, adjunct faculty member, or practicing lawyer to serve as the competitor's coach and accompany the competitor to the competition in person will be a significant factor in the selection process.

Law School's Anticipated Ability to Participate In-Person: At this time, Baylor Law is planning to host The Closer 2022 in its traditional in-person format. It is possible, however, that circumstances will dictate changes in the planned format of the competition. Please indicate the extent to which the format (i.e., virtual or in-person) of the competition may impact the ability of your law school to participate.

For more information, go to baylor.edu/law/thecloser or contact Professor Elizabeth Miller at Elizabeth_Miller@baylor.edu or Kathy Serr, Advocacy Program Coordinator, at Kathy_Serr@baylor.edu.
