Diadeloso started in 1932 as a way to "bring smiles to the faces of students" by giving them a break from classes. The annual spring holiday gradually evolved over the years to include a variety of activities and events that were once held in separate competitions such as tug of war, polo, and beanbag toss. Diadeloso now includes a wide range of activities from community service opportunities on Monday to a variety of Greek events on Tuesday and Wednesday. The main highlight of Diadeloso is Thursday evening’s block party with food, games, and performances. Proceeds will go toward Giving It Back To Kids, a nonprofit organization in Vietnam. For more information, contact Victoria Dinh at victoria_dinh1@baylor.edu.

Diadeloso continues with community service projects on Friday, focusing on helping the community and the planet through sustainable initiatives. On Saturday, Diadeloso transforms Armstrong Browning Library into a space for students to promote Asian Awareness. The event will have raffles, food, games, and performances. Proceeds will go toward CelebrASIAN Alliance, a nonprofit organization in Vietnam. For more information, contact Seiwa Lee at seiwa.lee@baylor.edu.
